One way to do this is by encouraging the development of new drugs that are "me-too" drugs, which are drugs that are similar to already marketed drugs but have a new indication or formulation. The FDA is currently reviewing the process for approving me-too drugs and is looking for ways to streamline the process and reduce the time and cost of development. The FDA is also looking for ways to encourage the development of new drugs that are "first-in-class" drugs, which are drugs that are the first of their kind to be marketed. The FDA is currently reviewing the process for approving first-in-class drugs and is looking for ways to streamline the process and reduce the time and cost of development.
