The modern American supermarket has, on average 47,000 products.

The reality behind how our food is produced is not a farm, but a factory.

In the 1930's the drive in was invented by the McDonald brothers.

We have never had food companies this big, and this Powerful in our histories.

To build one poultry house costs between 280,000 and 400,000.

A typical grower (not farmer) with two chicken houses has borrowed over 500,000 and earned 13,000.

A Cornucopia:

Most of our industrial food base is made from Corn.

CAFO stands for Concentrated animal feeding operations.

Unintended Consequences: Regulatory agencies are being controlled by the companies they are supposed to be scrutinizing.

There are 13 slaughter houses in the USA that process the majority of the beef.

Kevin's Law would give the USDA the power to shut down processing plants that repeatedly produce contaminated beef.

Beef filler is washed in Ammonia to kill e-coli bacteria.

The Dollar Menu:

The biggest determinant of obesity is income money.

One third of all Americans born after 2000 will contract early onset diabetes.

In The Grass:

The people who own the processing plants don't want others to go there because then the world would see the ugly truth.

A Stakeholder Approach to Corporate Social Responsibility Philip Kotler,François Maon,2016-03-16 Corporate social responsibility has grown into a global phenomenon that encompasses businesses consumers governments and civil society and many organizations have adopted its discourse Yet corporate social responsibility remains an uncertain and poorly defined ambition with few absolutes First the issues that organizations must address can easily be interpreted to include virtually everyone and everything Second with their unique often particular characteristics different stakeholder groups tend to focus only on specific issues that they believe are the most appropriate and relevant in organizations corporate social responsibility programs Thus beliefs about what constitutes a socially responsible and sustainable organization depend on the perspective of the stakeholder Third in any organization the beliefs of organizational members about their organization's social responsibilities vary according to their function and department as well as their own managerial fields of knowledge A Stakeholder Approach to Corporate Social Responsibility provides a comprehensive collection of cutting edge theories and research that can lead to a more multifaceted understanding of corporate social responsibility in its various forms the pressures and conflicts that result from these different understandings and some potential solutions for reconciling them
