Organizing Organic Michael A. Haedicke, 2016-05-18 Stakeholders in the organic food movement agree that it has the potential to transform our food system and yet there is little consensus about what this transformation should look like Tracing the history of the organic food sector Michael A Haedicke charts the development of two narratives that do more than simply polarize the organic debate they give way to competing institutional logics On the one hand social activists contend that organics can break up the concentration of power that rests in the hands of a big traditional agribusiness Alternatively professionals who are steeped in the culture of business emphasize the potential for market growth for fostering better behemoths Independent food store owners are then left to reconcile these ideas as they construct their professional identities and hone their business strategies Drawing on extensive interviews and unique archival sources Haedicke looks at how these groups make sense of their everyday work He pays particular attention to instances in which individuals overcome the conflicting narratives of industry transformation and market expansion by creating new cultural concepts and organizational forms At once an account of the sector's development and an analysis of individual choices within it Organizing Organic provides a nuanced account of the way the organic movement continues to negotiate ethical values and economic productivity Visual attention to tobacco-related stimuli in a 3D virtual store Lauren M. Dutra, Annice Kim, James Nonnemaker, Nathaniel Taylor, Ashley Feld, Brian Bradfield, John Holloway, Edward (Chip) Hill, 2020-05-27 We used eye tracking to measure visual attention to tobacco products and pro and anti tobacco advertisements pro ads and anti ads during a shopping task in a three dimensional virtual convenience store We used eye tracking hardware to track the percentage of fixations number of times the eye was essentially stationary F and dwell time time spent looking at an object DT for several categories of objects and ads for 30 adult current cigarette smokers We used Wald F tests to compare fixations and dwell time across categories adjusting comparisons of ads by the number of each type of ad Overall unadjusted for the number of each object participants focused significantly greater attention on snacks and drinks and tobacco products than ads all $P < 0.005$ Adjusting for the number of each type of ad viewed participants devoted significantly greater visual attention to pro ads than anti ads or ads unrelated to tobacco $P < 0.001$ Visual attention for anti ads was significantly greater when the ads were placed on the store's external walls or hung from the ceiling than when placed on the gas pump or floor $P < 0.005$ In a cluttered convenience store environment anti ads at the point of sale have to compete with many other stimuli Restrictions on tobacco product displays and advertisements at the point of sale could reduce the stimuli that attract smokers attention away from anti ads
