Bringing Up War-Babies Amanda Jones, 2018-08-06 The figure of the wartime child in the mid twentieth century unsettles and disturbs This book employs a range of material biographical literary and historical to chart some of the surprising and unanticipated crossovers between women s writing and early psychoanalysis in the years of the Second World War and the decades before and after This volume includes examples of children s adventure fiction as well as works written for adult audiences and important and previously unrecognized similarities are noted The war was a disruptive influence in the lives of all who lived through it Although active self censorship is observed in the behaviour and attitudes of adults at this time this book demonstrates how fictional children are able to articulate feelings such as anxiety and fear that adults were under pressure to conceal or to repress and at times the figure of the wartime child becomes a surrogate for the writer herself or her suppressed fears and anxiety When peace returned this study finds women writers quick to identify and communicate a discomfiting new ambivalence between parents and children The Emory Alumnus ... V.5, No. 2, March 1929 ,1929

The Figure of the Child in WWI American, British, and Canadian Children's Literature Elizabeth A.

Galway, 2022-03-30 Over the past century much attention has been paid to the literature written for adults in response to the First World War but there has been comparatively little consideration of how the war influenced literature for young readers at the time Based on extensive archival research this study examines an array of wartime writing for young people and provides a new understanding of the complexities and nuances within children s literature of the period In its discussion of nearly 150 primary sources from Britain Canada and the United States this volume considers some well known texts but also brings to light forgotten children s literature of the era providing new insights into how WWI was presented to the young people whose lives were indelibly impacted by the crisis Paying special attention to the varied ways in which child figures were depicted it reflects on what these portrayals reveal about adult conceptualizations of youth and it considers how these may have shaped young readers own views of armed conflict citizenship and childhood From the helpless victim to the heroic combatant child figures appeared in many guises exposing a range of adult concerns about nation empire and children s citizenship Exploring everything from alphabet books for beginning readers to recruitment materials for high school students this book examines works from multiple genres and provides a uniquely comprehensive study of transatlantic children s literature produced during the first global war Dutch Children of African American Liberators Mieke Kirkels, Chris

Dickon, 2020-10-14 In the Netherlands a small group of biracial citizens has entered its eighth decade of lives that have been often puzzling and difficult but which offer a unique insight into the history of race relations in America Though their African American fathers had brought liberation from Nazi tyranny at the end of World War II they were in a segregated American military derived from a racially divided American society Decades later some of their children could finally know of a father s identity and the life he had led after the war Just one would be able to find an embrace in his arms and just one would arrive at her father's American grave after 73 years But they could now understand their own Dutch lives in the context of their fathers lives in America Bureau publication (United States. Children's Bureau). no. 76, 1921 ,1921 The Translation of Violence in Children's Literature Marija Todorova,2021-11-29 Considering children's literature as a powerful repository for creating and proliferating cultural and national identities this monograph is the first academic study of children's literature in translation from the Western Balkans Marija Todorova looks at a broad range of children's literature from fiction to creative non fiction and picture books across five different countries in the Western Balkans with each chapter including detailed textual and visual analysis through the predominant lens of violence These chapters raise questions around who initiates and effectuates the selection of children's literature from the Western Balkans for translation into English and interrogate the role of different stakeholders such as translators publishers and cultural institutions in the representation and construction of these countries in translated children's literature both in text and visually Given the combination of this study's interdisciplinary nature and Todorova's detailed analysis this book will prove to be an essential resource for professional translators researchers and students in courses in translation studies children's literature or area studies especially that of countries in the Western Balkans Women's Identities at War Susan R. Grayzel,1999 There are few moments in history when the division between the sexes seems as natural as during wartime men go off to the war front while women stay behind on the home front But the very notion of the home front was an invention of the First World

Infant Feeding John Dobbing, 2012-12-06 Infant Feeding is about a controversy which fascinated the medical and scientific world as well as national and international health authorities politicians religious groups and consumer organisations for more than 11 years It often disturbed public opinion being concerned as it is with nothing less than the life and death of babies The infant food industry was directly accused of having caused a decline in breast feeding through the inappropriate marketing of breast milk substitutes The problem was said to be particularly acute in poor under developed communities because illiterate mothers were unable to understand instructions for its use water was often contaminated and in order to stretch an admittedly expensive product it was over diluted The inevitable result said the critics of industry was malnutrition gastroenteritis and increased infant mortality These were very serious charges against companies which had until then been generally considered to provide an important contribution to medical progress and child health One company was to be particularly singled out Nestl SA the Swiss multinational Perhaps it became the target because it was the longest establishment and served well as a symbol of the whole industry It is a story which is full of confrontations intrigue and passionately held opinions based nevertheless on a sizeable body of medical science After countless twists and turns it has some sort of happy ending Yet a great deal remains to be said as will be seen throughout the book
