Television in the Digital Era Hanne Bruun,2019-12-06 This book explores how the television industry is adapting its production culture and professional practises of scheduling to an increasingly non linear television paradigm a testing ground where different communicative tools are tried out in a volatile industry Based on four case studies the book argues that a new television paradigm is being produced from within the multiplatform television organisations themselves in order to adapt to changing viewer habits and the tensions between digital and broadcast television Drawing on a unique genre and production studies approach that cuts across the humanities and sociology in television studies chapters cover in depth studies of The communicative changes to the on air schedule as a televisual text phenomenon in the digital era and how the conceptualisations of the audience are changing in scheduling and curation for multiplatform portfolios The changing production culture of scheduling in companies for their multiplatform portfolios The dilemmas of curation in multiplatform portfolios Situated at the intersection of the humanities and sociology in media production studies this book will be of key interest to scholars and students of television studies media production studies and cultural studies and to researchers and media professionals and management in the television industry Zoning China Luzhou Li,2024-02-06 An examination of cultural zoning in China considers why government regulation of online video is so much more lenient than regulation of broadcast television In Zoning China Luzhou Li investigates why the Chinese government regulates online video relatively leniently while tightly controlling what appears on broadcast television Li argues that television has largely been the province of the state even as the market has dominated the development of online video Thus online video became a space where people could question state media and the state s preferred ideological narratives about the nation history and society Li connects this relatively unregulated arena to the second channel that opened up in the early days of economic reform piracy in all its permutations She compares the dual cultural sphere to China s economic zoning the marketized domain of online video is the cultural equivalent of the Special Economic Zones which were developed according to market principles in China s coastal cities Li explains that although the relaxed oversight of online video may seem to represent a loosening of the party state s grip on media the practice of cultural zoning in fact demonstrates the the state s strategic control of the media environment She describes how China s online video industry developed into an original creative force of production and distribution that connected domestic private production companies transnational corporations and a vast network of creative labor from amateurs to professional content creators Li notes that China has increased state management of the internet since 2014 signaling that online and offline censorship standards may be unified Cultural zoning as a technique of cultural governance however will likely remain Television Without Pity Tara Ariano,Sarah D.
