

Some of the Strategies on How to Revise Properly

I

Analyze the whole picture of writing

Revise the paper in general without paying close attention to details:

1. Check on whether you have gained the initial aim of writing;
2. Check whether you have covered the required materials;
3. Check on whether the style of writing and the information provided are suitable for the target audience;
4. Check on whether your intentions of writing are clear;
5. Ask yourself whether the layout of the paper is comprehensible.

II

Pay attention to paragraph development:

1. Is each idea/ argument supported by sufficient evidence and examples?
2. Is the supporting material logically introduced into the paper?

III

Consider the paper structure:

1. Is there a central idea conveyed in the paper?
2. Does the introductory paragraph have a catchy beginning?
3. Are separate paragraphs united by a common idea?
4. Does each body paragraph start with a topic sentence?
5. Are there closing sentences in each paragraph?

IV

Double-check sentence structure:

1. Do sentences provide clear meaning?
2. Is the word order proper and logical?
3. Is active voice preferred to passive?
4. Is word choice appropriate for academic writing?
