Armstrong,2012-06-05 In fifty years of prosecuting and defending criminal cases in New York City and elsewhere Michael F Armstrong has often dealt with cops For a single two year span as chief counsel to the Knapp Commission he was charged with investigating them Based on Armstrong s vivid recollections of this watershed moment in law enforcement accountability prompted by the New York Times s report on whistleblower cop Frank Serpico They Wished They Were Honest recreates the dramatic struggles and significance of the Commission and explores the factors that led to its success and the restoration of the NYPD's public image. Serpico's charges against the NYPD encouraged Mayor John Lindsay to appoint prominent attorney Whitman Knapp to chair a Citizen's Commission on police graft. Overcoming a number of organizational, budgetary and political hurdles, Chief Counsel Armstrong cobbled together an investigative group of a half dozen lawyers and a dozen agents. Just when funding was about to run out, the blue wall of silence collapsed. A flamboyant Madame, a corrupt lawyer and a weaselly informant led to a super thief cop who was trapped and turned by the Commission. This led to sensational and revelatory hearings which publicly refuted the notion that departmental corruption was limited to only a few rotten apples. In the course of his narrative, Armstrong illuminates police investigative strategy, governmental and departmental political maneuvering, ethical and philosophical issues in law enforcement, the efficacy or lack thereof of the police's anticorruption efforts, the effectiveness of the training of police officers, the psychological and emotional pressures that lead to corruption, and the effects of police criminality on individuals and society. He concludes with the effects in today's world of Knapp and succeeding investigations into police corruption and the value of permanent outside monitoring bodies such as the special prosecutor's office formed in response to the Commission's recommendation, as well as the current monitoring commission of which Armstrong is chairman.
