

Lab: Sheep Brain Dissection

"Before starting this lab, open the "Brain Parts and Functions" document. Refer to images, descriptions, and functions of parts of the brain as you proceed through this lab."

Sheep brains, although much smaller than human brains, have similar features and can be a valuable addition to anatomy studies. See for yourself what the cerebrum, cerebellum, spinal cord, gray matter, white matter, and other parts of the brain look like!

Observation: External Anatomy

1. You'll need a preserved sheep brain for the dissection. Set the brain down so the flatter side, with the white spinal cord at one end, rests on the dissection pan. Notice that the brain has two halves, or hemispheres. Can you tell the difference between the cerebrum and the cerebellum?

2. Look for "folding" on the outer layers (the cerebral cortex) of the cerebrum. Identify ridges (called gyri) and grooves (sulci) in the cerebral cortex. What functions might this "folding" provide for the brain? What does this tell you about the importance of the gray matter in the cerebral cortex?

3. Observe the layer of protective tissue covering the brain. This is made up of the meninges (dura mater, arachnoid mater, and pia mater). Can you identify the three layers? Can you see the dark blood vessels just beneath the meninges?

4. Turn the brain over. You'll probably be able to identify the medulla oblongata (also called the medulla), pons, midbrain, two optic nerves at the optic chiasm (where they cross to opposite hemispheres), and olfactory bulbs.

5. Find the olfactory bulb on each hemisphere. These will be slightly smoother and a different shade than the tissue around them. The olfactory bulbs control the sense of smell. The nerves to the nose are no longer connected, but you can see "nubby" ends where they were. The nerves to your mouth and lower body are attached to the medulla. The nerves to your eyes are connected to the optic chiasm. See if you can find some of the nerve stubs.

Dissection: Internal Anatomy

1. Use a scissors to cut through the meninges (these tissues are quite tough). Carefully "peel" the meninges away from the brain, trying not to pull other structures away with them.
