Sherman Alexie, Superman and Me

In Sherman Alexie's essay, Superman and Me, he uses repetition and extended metaphors to transition from a personal to social level as he illustrates his poor childhood, and how reading saves his and others lives. The essay is introduced with the Superman comic books that taught Alexie how to read. He uses the repetition of "I cannot recall" to explain that he does not recall the exact details of what he read but the idea of reading. This continues to develop his love for reading because it shows he would read all that he could just to read. Alexie also reveals this love through his family's poor situation. "When he had extra money, he bought new novels." This creates compassion and devotion because, although his family did not have money, they made sure their education and knowledge came first.

Following this Alexie explains how, based on reading, his devotion started to change the way he understood his surroundings. He began seeing paragraphs as "fences that held words" and that "they worked together for a common purpose." He connected that to his own life. For example, he saw his "family's house was a paragraph" different from the other houses surrounding his. The repetition of "paragraph" emphasizes that, with everything he saw, he could connect it to what he learned from reading.

He then begins to make connections towards the Superman comic book. Although Alexie did not understand what
