British Steam: BR Standard Locomotives Keith Langston,2012-11-19 A history of post second world war steam locomotive design and construction in Great Britain the perfect gift for railroad history buffs After WWII the existing railway companies were all put into the control of the newly formed British Transport Commission and that government organization spawned British Railways which came into being on January 1st 1948 The railway infrastructure had suffered badly during the war years and most of the steam locomotives were tired and badly maintained and or life expired Although the management of British Railways was already planning to replace steam power with diesel and electric engines they still decided to build more steam locomotives as a stop gap Some 999 Standard locomotives were built in twelve classes ranging from super powerful express and freight engines to suburban tank locomotives The locomotives were mainly in good order when the directive came in 1968 to end steam some trains were only eight years old There still exists a fleet of forty six preserved Standards of which 75% are in working order in and around the UKs preserved railways furthermore three new build standard locomotives are proposed Steam fans who were around in the 1960s all remember the Standards The Aebeling Michael O'Neill,2014-04-21 Major Ret Conn MacLeod is no ordinary forty year old and he has a very long list of achievements to prove it From his decorated army career his celebrated status as a world champion in several sports his acknowledged expertise in history science and engineering gained through his numerous university degrees and his notoriety as a millionaire playboy he has more notches in his belt and trophies on the wall than ten men combined Despite living his entire life in a breakneck carefree and almost suicidal manner Conn MacLeod has been the proverbial unstoppable force But
