QUESTION

The current selected programming language is C. We emphasize the submission of a fully working code over partially correct but efficient code. Once submitted, you cannot review this problem again. You can use printf() to debug your code. The printf() may not work in case of syntax/runtime error. The version of GCC being used is 5.4.0

A company manufactures different types of software products. They deliver their products to their N clients. Whenever the company fulfils the complete order of a client, the orderID generated is the concatenation of the number of products delivered for every committed product type. The head of the sales team wishes to find the clientwise data for the total number of products of any type delivered to every client.

Write an algorithm for the head of sales team to calculate the total number of products of any type delivered to the respective clients.

Input
The first line of the input consists of an integer numOfClients representing the number of clients (N).
The second line consists of N space-separated integers - orderID₁, orderID₂,...
