Design of a Self-powered Pressure Sensor for Tire Pressure Monitoring System Juan Ren, 2007 Tire Pressure Monitoring Martin Fischer, 2003 Low Power Tire Pressure Monitoring System Sravanthi Goparaju, 2008 Power management is considered to be an important aspect in designing battery operated Tire Pressure Monitoring Systems TPMS as it helps to prolong the lifespan of the battery There are several methods that can be used to design a low power tire pressure and service monitoring system One of the most common methods for power reduction is the duty cycle method This thesis suggests an idea of implementing the TPMS in combination with a separate Radio Frequency Identification RFID circuit especially a very low power active or passive RFID whose sole purpose is to detect the interrogating signal This RFID circuit which can operate at a typical frequency of 125 kHz is used to turn ON a higher power transmitter which is initially in SLEEP state and soon after entering the active state performs the communication updating etc Once the desired task is completed the high power transmitter returns to SLEEP state or is turned off until the next interrogation The implementation of SLEEP mode to minimize power consumption is discussed in detail and the currents consumed by the microcontroller in SLEEP and ACTIVE modes are measured and recorded The microcontroller in SLEEP mode consumed a current of 17 μ A which reduced the overall average current consumed by the microcontroller and the pressure sensor Furthermore this method promises an improvement in the battery life and the calculations showing this improvement are discussed with the example of an AA battery with 2800mAh battery life which sense pressure plus other pertinent parameters i.e. vehicle load and speed tire temperature etc directly or indirectly and adjust or sustain the pressure at a the level appropriate for the conditions and inform the driver of the system's activity SAE J2848-1 has been reaffirmed to comply with the SAE Five Year Review policy Tires Charles E. Rabuse, 2013 Proper tire inflation is important for several reasons Underinflated tires experience a greater amount of sidewall flexion than properly inflated tires resulting in decreased fuel economy sluggish handling longer stopping distances increased stress to tire components and heat build up that can lead to catastrophic failure of the tire such as cracking component separation or blow out These catastrophic failures can cause loss of vehicle control and may result in a crash This book presents an analysis of the data collected through the Tire Pressure Monitoring System Special Study TPMS SS as it pertains to the effectiveness of TPMS in promoting proper tire inflation
