The Young Artist as Scientist Mary Jo Pollman, 2017. This is the first in-depth look at the important connections between the arts and science specifically for early childhood education pre-K 3rd grade. Highlighting their many commonalities such as the processes involved in creative problem solving, the author draws on what we can learn from Leonardo da Vinci as the supreme artist/scientist. Every chapter begins with a vignette of Leonardo and relates his thinking to the development of children's ideas in the arts and STEM/STEAM. This fresh look at the interdisciplinary connections of the arts and science offers early childhood teachers and administrators a spectrum of tools for connecting the creative arts, art, movement, drama, and music to the STEM movement, 21st-century skills, and developmentally appropriate practice. A coherent, well-researched argument for replacing meaningless activities with engaging creative art and STEM experiences. Foreword by Judy Harris Helm, president, Best Practices Inc. Mary Jo understands the many connections between science and art, and her materials and resources foster creativity and science learning with ready-to-use activities.

Carrie Lynne Draper, founder, executive director, Readiness Learning Associates. Woven throughout the book are historical perspectives, current research, critical concepts, and activity ideas that provide a rich rationale and immediate applicability to the classroom.

Women Music Educators in the United States Sondra Wieland Howe, 2013-11-07. Although women have been teaching and performing music for centuries, their stories are often missing from traditional accounts of the history of music education. In Women Music Educators in the United States: A History, Sondra Wieland Howe provides a comprehensive narrative of women teaching music in the United States from colonial days until the end of the twentieth century. Defining music education broadly to include home, community, and institutional settings, Howe draws on sources from musicology, the history of education, and social history to offer a new perspective on the topic. In colonial America, women sang in church choirs and taught their children at home. In the first half of the nineteenth century, women published hymns, taught in academies and rural schoolhouses, and held church positions. After the Civil War, women taught piano and voice, went to college, taught in public schools, and became involved in national music organizations. With the expansion of public schools in the first half of the twentieth century, women supervised public school music programs, published textbooks, and served as officers of national organizations. They taught in settlement houses and teacher training institutions, developed music appreciation programs, and organized women's symphony orchestras. After World War II, women continued their involvement in public school choral and instrumental music, developed new methodologies, conducted research, and published in academia Howe's study traces this evolution in the roles played by women educators in the American music education system illuminating an area of research that has been ignored far too long Women Music Educators in the United States A History complements current histories of music education and supports undergraduate and graduate courses in the history of music music education American education and women's studies It will interest not only musicologists educational historians and scholars of women's studies but music educators teaching in public and private schools and independent music teachers
