on the road while we travel to work or home or to use our eyes at a railway station to know that the transport of goods takes up a lot of the room our modern day infrastructures provide Sometimes perhaps a little too much nowadays congestion seems to be the rule rather than the exception This is an uncomfortable side effect of the explosive growth freight transport has experienced the last few decades<sup>1</sup> Modern day transport offers a considerable array of possibilities possibilities that are for the most part taken for granted by the general public that enjoys their benefits The average European would not be surprised to learn that the fruit on offer in the local supermarket originates from another continent for instance The idea that most of the things we use in our daily routine stem from a distant source such as a cell phone from Japan a trendy pair of designer jeans made in China or a glass of Australian wine seems completely natural to us Clearly the contemporary transport industry offers us a lot of benefits besides such discomforts as congestion and pollution In earlier times before machinery such as the steam engine had been invented it was hardly cost effective or even feasible when it came to perishables to carry goods halfway around the world if they were not at least valuable and extraordinary<sup>2</sup> The limitations set on trade by the transport structures available did more however than simply curtail the range of affordable products on offer for the public They also had a negative effect on the location of the industry limited transport possibilities and forced production to take place near or in heavily populated areas to secure the necessary workforce and market possibilities After all industrial decentralisation is only feasible if there is an infrastructure capable of supporting a cost effective movement of goods and employees<sup>3</sup>
