Avant-propos de J. Paton, etc J. Ch VIATOR (pseud.),1874 Crossed Correspondences Vanessa Guignery,2016-02-08 While some writers adamantly refuse to allow anyone to read let alone comment upon their literary production until it is published others are willing to submit their manuscripts and work in progress to their peers in the hope of receiving critical judgment that might validate their choices or prompt them to introduce changes Correspondences between writers thus contain treasures of literary analysis when the recipient of a piece annotates it criticises it judges it inciting the sender to justify or defend his/her choices to reconsider his/her method and to discuss his/her aesthetic principles The aim of this collection of essays is to analyse the specificity of letters in which writers comment not only on the production of their correspondent but also on their own artistic approach and their own work while it is still in progress or only just completed but not yet published Examining epistolary exchanges from the sixteenth to the twenty first century between English American and French authors contributors particularly concentrate on the points of contact between correspondences and literary criticism on the way writers reveal themselves as their peers first critics This process can help both parties delineate more clearly their trains of thoughts and accompany works in their gestation The epistolary genre thus becomes an aesthetic laboratory and a place for literary debates General Catalogue of Printed Books British Museum.
