Education and Development in Zimbabwe Edward Shizha, Michael T. Kariwo, 2012-01-01 The book represents a contribution to policy formulation and design in an increasingly knowledge economy in Zimbabwe It challenges scholars to think about the role of education its funding and the egalitarian approach to widening access to education The nexus between education democracy and policy change is a complex one The book provides an illuminating account of the constantly evolving notions of national identity language and citizenship from the Zimbabwean experience The book discusses educational successes and challenges by examining the ideological effects of social political and economic considerations on Zimbabwe's colonial and postcolonial education Currently literature on current educational challenges in Zimbabwe is lacking and there is very little published material on these ideological effects on educational development in Zimbabwe. This book is likely to be one of the first on the impact of social, political and economic meltdown on education. The book is targeted at local and international academics and scholars of history of education and comparative education, scholars of international education and development, undergraduate and graduate students and professors who are interested in educational development in Africa, particularly Zimbabwe. Notwithstanding, the book is a valuable resource to policy makers, educational administrators and researchers and the wider community. Shizha and Kariwo's book is an important and illuminating addition on the effects of social, political and economic trajectories on education and development in Zimbabwe. It critically analyses the crucial specifics of the Zimbabwean situation by providing an in-depth discourse on education at this historical juncture. The book offers new insights that may be useful for an understanding of not only the Zimbabwean case but also education in other African countries. Rosemary Gordon, Senior Lecturer in Educational Foundations, University of Zimbabwe. Ranging in temporal scope from the colonial era and its elitist legacy through the golden era of populist universal elementary education to the disarray of contemporary socioeconomic crisis, covering elementary through higher education and touching thematically on everything from the pernicious effects of social adjustment programmes through the local deprofessionalization of teaching, this text provides a comprehensive, wide-ranging and yet carefully detailed account of education in Zimbabwe. This engagingly written portrayal will prove illuminating not only to readers interested in Zimbabwe's education specifically but more widely to all who are interested in how the sociopolitical shapes education, how ideology, policy, international pressures, economic factors and shifts in values collectively forge the historical and contemporary character of a country's education. Learning to Live Together in Africa through History Education Denise Bontrovato, 2017-11-13. This study sheds light on the current state of history education in Africa and reflects on its potential to prepare this continent's learners for the challenges of learning to live together. Drawing on an examination of school curricula and the experiences of educational stakeholders, it identifies trends in the processes and outcomes of recent curricular revisions and discerns key challenges relating to the teaching and learning of history across Africa. It scrutinises the place afforded to history within African education systems and surveys related contents and pedagogies. While it identifies African history as a fundamental yet sensitive and controversial subject, it also illustrates examples of present-day curricular strategies to integrating a concern for promoting a culture of peace.

Some Developments in Research in Science and Mathematics in Sub-Saharan Africa Lorna Holtman, 2008. Much attention in late developing countries is given to providing access to studies which allow school leavers to enter science and technology-related careers. These programmes are driven by the belief that graduates will then substantially contribute to the developmental needs of their countries. But is providing access to institutions enough? Students in developing countries often come from school environments lacking in resources, human, physical and financial.

This book in a number of chapters reviews research related to the crucial dimension of epistemological access to the disciplines of import which students need as much as institutional access in order to improve their chances of success A significant feature of this collection s research studies is that their empirical bases are highly localised covering areas such as research methods access curriculum instruction and assessment and the relevance of science and mathematics education in Zimbabwe Uganda Swaziland South Africa Namibia Malawi Ghana and Lesotho This volume provides invaluable insights and will be of relevance to researchers policy makers and lecturers interested in these research outcomes in Sub Saharan Africa It is the outcome of a doctoral research capacity development project the Graduate Studies in Science Mathematics and Technology Education GRASSMATE

Investigating the Impact of Information Communication Technology on Self-directed Professional Development of Teachers Emmanuel Mushayikwa, 2011-03-02 The aim of this research was to investigate the perceived impact of ICT on Zimbabwean A level science and mathematics teachers self directed professional development The study was based on a questionnaire survey of 254 teachers throughout the country Supplementary data came from 54 interviews Some observations of teachers using ICT in teacher centres e mail correspondence and field reports also contributed to the database of the study An analysis framework was developed through the use of grounded theory on the interview transcripts The framework yielded 9 themes relating to the teachers use of ICT for their professional development These were 1 perceived professional identity 2 career development 3 Managing the ICT environment 4 theoretical and content knowledge 5 practical knowledge and skills 6 adaptation 7 professional networking and 8 9 perceived benefits to teachers and students Chaos complexity theory was used to identify the major attractors goals for teachers self directed professional development using ICT Two attractors were identified These were personal professional development and classroom practice However an over riding factor common to both attractors was identified as self efficacy The study identified the over arching driver for self directed professional development as the teacher s need to improve their self efficacy A two dimensional model of self directed professional development was suggested The systemic element of the model focused on the self correcting impact of ICT use on professional development whilst the personal element focused on self efficacy as the central stratum for self directed professional development The study concluded by acknowledging the potent role that ICT is playing in the self directed continuing professional development of teachers in Zimbabwe and recommended among other things the inclusion of A level teachers in the development of localised online materials resources for their subjects This will help to enhance relevance of the materials to the Zimbabwean context New Leaders, New Dawns? Chris Brown, David Moore, Blair

Rutherford, 2022-06-17 In late 2017 and early 2018 South Africa and Zimbabwe both experienced rapid and unexpected political transitions In Zimbabwe Robert Mugabe the only leader the country had ever known was replaced in a soft coup by his erstwhile vice president Emmerson Mnangagwa Over a twelve day period in February 2018 South African president Jacob Zuma was prematurely forced from office by his former deputy president Cyril Ramaphosa The widespread popular rejoicing that accompanied their arrival compounded the shock of these sudden transitions New Leaders New Dawns explores these political transitions and the way they were received Contributors consider how the former liberation heroes Mugabe and Zuma could have fallen so low the underlying reasons for their ouster what happened to their liberation movements turned ruling parties and perhaps most importantly what the rise to power of Ramaphosa and Mnangagwa foreshadowed Bringing together fourteen leading international scholars of southern Africa and adopting a political economy framework this volume argues that the changes in leadership are welcome but insufficient While the time had come for Zuma and Mugabe to go there is little in the personal histories or early policy actions of Ramaphosa and Mnangagwa that suggests they will be capable of addressing the profound social economic and political problems both countries face New Leaders New Dawns reveals that despite what these new leaders may have promised a new dawn has not yet arrived in southern Africa
