“This I Believe Essays”

Until last summer I had a very comfortable life: winter vacations skiing and summer cruises. My parents spent a lot of money on a private prep school, so they could get me into a competitive middle school, followed by the uber-expensive high school. Everything was about tomorrow, next year, my graduation. We never had to worry about today.

Before last summer I never thought much about the people in the world who live day to day, every day, whose lives are controlled by poverty and hunger. Then I enrolled in a two-week intensive program sponsored by Heifer International. We lived in a “Tribal Village,” in a hot, dry open grassland in Arkansas. I know it was only a simulation, that I could go back to my regular life, but the experience gave birth to a belief in helping others. Today,

I am a tribal member in Mozambique. Every meal, I make the fire for my family, and feel the flames lick up my nostrils as I blow to keep the fuel alive. I cook mush with vegetables. This is all my family is ever given.

I feed the hen and three rabbits their dinner. I grow attached to the rabbits, even though I know I shouldn't. I name them.

We are living in a house that feels like an oven with no air conditioning like I am used to, and even though water is available, everyone is too hot and tired to move. I go to the kitchen — an area of dirt floor — to make the fire for breakfast. Again I stir and eat the same unfulfilling mush. It's a bad dream, over and over and over again. My lungs fill up with smoke, ash blocks my vision, and I can almost see through the eyes of people who really live like this every single day with no hope for change.

I'm not getting enough to eat; it's time to decide whether or not to kill the rabbits. I feel pain but it's a privileged child's pain because I know I will soon be eating again. That's not true for a lot of other children around the world.

Growing up comfortably in the U.S., I've never had to worry about my dinner, and even though this whole process was only a simulation, it changed my life. Now I believe in doing whatever I can to help find practical ways to defeat hunger. Today, So I've become president of Roots and Shoots, a group working to improve local environments for people and animals. I'm also working to create a program at my high school called the “Safe Passage” trip, to help young people in the Guatemala City dump. And I've got plans to do more.

If I ever feel lethargic, I remember laboring in the hot sun and think of the millions who still do. Now, I try to live for today and stop worrying so much about the future. When I eat or feel full, I am grateful for this fortunate life and want to extend the same feeling to others.

I believe in offering help to those who need it. Right now.

Maria Zapetis is a senior at Miami Country Day School in Miami, Fla. In addition to her school activities and theatrical productions, Maria works to fight poverty and hunger in her community and around the world.

does not support the five paragraph formula In fact research shows that the formula restricts creativity emphasizes structure rather than content does not improve standardized test scores inadequately prepares students for college writing and results in vapid writing In Beyond the Five Paragraph Essay Kimberly and Kristi show you how to reclaim the literary essay and create a program that encourages thoughtful writing in response to literature They provide numerous strategies that stimulate student thinking value unique insight and encourage lively personal writing including the following Close reading which is the basis for writing about literature Low stakes writing options that support students thinking as they read Collaboration in support of discussion debate and organizational structures that support writing as exploration A focus on students writing process as foundational to content development and structure The use of model texts to write in the form of the literature students are reading and analyzing The goal of reading and writing about literature is to push and challenge our students thinking We want students to know that their writing can convey something important a unique view to share defend prove delight discover and inspire If we want our students to be more engaged skilled writers we need to move beyond the five paragraph essay

The Will to Believe, and Other Essays in Popular Philosophy William James, 2024-11-06 The City of God Volume II an enduring work by Saint Augustine invites readers into a profound examination of faith society and the eternal battle between divine and earthly realms Written during a period of societal upheaval Saint Augustine addresses the tumult of the collapsing Roman Empire providing a vision of a spiritual kingdom transcending earthly trials In this second volume Augustine builds upon the philosophical and theological foundation laid in Volume I continuing to explore the ultimate destinies of the City of God and the City of Man He delves deeply into human history exposing the flaws of a society built on pride and selfish desires contrasting it with the values of humility and love that characterize the heavenly city His insights into virtue sin and the nature of evil provide a roadmap for those seeking understanding in a world marked by conflict and change The City of God Volume II is celebrated not only as a theological classic but also as a timeless reflection on the relationship between church and state morality and the soul's journey This work transcends its historical context offering modern readers invaluable perspectives on spirituality ethics and the human condition Saint Augustine's eloquent prose and rigorous arguments resonate with anyone who questions the purpose of life and the nature of justice Readers are drawn to The City of God for its intellectual depth and spiritual wisdom finding answers to the age old questions that still challenge society today This book is a must read for those seeking to understand the deeper purposes of human existence and the conflict between worldly ambitions and spiritual fulfillment Owning a copy of The City of God Volume II offers readers an opportunity to engage with one of the most influential thinkers in Christian philosophy making it an essential addition to any serious collection on theology and philosophy

The First-Person Perspective and Other Essays Sydney Shoemaker, 1996-09-13 Sydney Shoemaker is one of the most influential philosophers currently writing on philosophy of mind and metaphysics The essays in this collection deal with the way in which we know our own minds and with the nature of those mental states of which we have our most direct conscious awareness Professor Shoemaker opposes the inner sense conception of introspective self knowledge He defends the view that perceptual and sensory states have non representational features qualia that determine what it is like to have them Amongst the other topics covered are the unity of consciousness and the idea that the first person perspective gives a privileged route to philosophical understanding of the nature of mind This major collection is sure to prove invaluable to all advanced students of the philosophy of mind and cognitive science
