Photography has many genres, some of which are inherited from painting (e.g. still life, portraiture, landscape). Some genres are unique to photography (e.g. photojournalism). Artists/photographers often play with genre conventions for creative purposes, disrupting our expectations.

The ability to:

identify and use genre conventions creatively, understanding that photography shares some of these conventions with other forms of visual and media art.

Wondering & questioning

Daring to be different

Reflecting critically

"Genres involve types of expectation of meaning that link form to content."

- David Bate

"I am interested in the conventions of picture-making, in the desire to picture the world and in our relationship, our continual love for and fascination with pictures."

- Uta Barth
