Alcohol

Alcohol is a drug that affects the brain and body. It can lead to health problems, including liver disease, heart disease, and cancer. Drinking too much alcohol can also lead to accidents and injuries. It is important to drink responsibly and to know your limits.

Sex

Sex is a natural part of life, but it is important to be safe and responsible. Using condoms and other forms of birth control can help prevent pregnancy and sexually transmitted infections. It is also important to communicate with your partner about your sexual health.

OTHER

Other factors that can affect your health include stress, diet, exercise, and sleep. It is important to take care of yourself by eating a healthy diet, getting regular exercise, and getting enough sleep. Managing stress is also important for your overall health.

Academics

Academics can be a source of stress, but it is important to manage that stress. Taking breaks, staying organized, and asking for help when you need it can help you succeed in school. Remember, your health is your most important asset, so make sure you are taking care of it.

Relationships

Relationships can be a source of support and happiness, but they can also be a source of stress. It is important to communicate with your partner and to set boundaries. If you are in an unhealthy relationship, it is important to seek help.
