Proyer, Hsueh-Chih Chen, 2019-08-12 The emergence of Positive Psychology has highlighted the importance of studying the good life and how to attain it Positive life outcomes such as well being thriving flourishing and happiness were discussed and investigated Among them different orientations to happiness were identified such as a life of pleasure life of meaning and life of engagement Other outcomes such as subjective and objective fulfillment in life or societal recognition have been less studied Among the characteristics that facilitate positive outcomes the VIA classification of strength and virtues distinguishes 24 strengths with humor playfulness being one of them Only a small segment of humor entered the definition of humor as character strengths namely the parts that contain some goodness Humor as a character strength facilitates a lot of positive outcomes such as positive emotions and positive relationships and there is a lightness accompanying humor playfulness The field is broader though and transcends the definition of humor as used in positive psychology in at least two ways First there is actually a family of overlapping but still distinct concepts with different research traditions We include next to humor and types of humor also laughter playfulness and cheerfulness We think that more research is needed on how they do overlap and what makes them

distinct Second while positive psychology is interested in the goodness of we do want to stress that there is the need to study the non virtuous parts as well That is laughter may not only be expressing amusement but scorn directed at people humor may be benevolent but there is also sarcasm and playfulness may elicit positive emotions but also risk prone and immature types of behavior Therefore the aim of this Research Topic was to collect current perspectives on humor playfulness laughter and cheerfulness in both adults and children to study their full diversity but also interrelations and overlapping features to introduce new instruments or ways for their assessment in future studies and to study their causes and consequences in a variety of life domains We encouraged studies on differences due to gender or nationality the embodiment in different groups e g class clowns psychiatric patients or whether or not they can be trained We also welcomed contributions from adjacent disciplines e g education leisure studies or therapy counseling and different regions of the earth The outcome is a set of 33 manuscripts from altogether 101 authors Not all areas are covered and not all aims were met while we made progress there is much left to do In this sense the merging of these topics may be the first milestone but like every milestone it only marks the beginning of a long journey

Evolutionary and Neurocognitive Approaches to Aesthetics, Creativity and the Arts Colin Martindale, Paul Locher, Vladimir M Petrov, Arnold Berleant, 2019-06-04 In this book well known scholars describe new and exciting approaches to aesthetics creativity and psychology of the arts approaching these topics from a point of view that is biological or related to biology and answering new questions with new methods and theories All known societies produce and enjoy arts such as literature music and visual decoration or depiction Judging from prehistoric archaeological evidence this arose very early in human development Furthermore Darwin was explicit in attributing aesthetic sensitivity to lower animals

These considerations lead us to wonder whether the arts might not be evolutionarily based. Although such an evolutionary basis is not obvious on the face of it, the idea has recently elicited considerable attention. The book begins with a consideration of ten theories on the evolutionary function of specific arts such as music and literature. The theory of evolution was first drawn up in biology but evolution is not confined to biology; genuinely evolutionary theories of sociocultural change can be formulated. That they need to be formulated is shown in several chapters that discuss regular trends in literature and scientific writings. Psychologists have recently rediscovered the obvious fact that thought and perception occur in the brain so cognitive science moves ever closer to neuroscience. Several chapters give overviews of neurocognitive and neural network approaches to creativity and aesthetic appreciation. The book concludes with two exciting descriptions of brain scan research on what happens in the brain during creativity and presenting a close examination of the relationship between genetically transmitted mental disorder and creativity.

Comic Books and Comic Strips in the United States through 2005 John Lent, 2006-04-30 This final work in John Lent's series of bibliographies on comic art gathers together an astounding array of citations on American comic books and comic strips. Included in this volume are citations regarding anthologies and reprints, criticism and reviews, exhibitions, festivals and awards, scholarship and theory, and the business, artistic, cultural, legal, technical, and technological aspects of American comics. Author John Lent has used all manner of methods to gather the citations: searching library and online databases, contacting scholars and other professionals, attending conferences and festivals, and scanning hundreds of periodicals. He has gone to great length to categorize the citations in an easy-to-use scholarly fashion and in the process has helped to establish the field of comic art as an important part of social science and humanities research. The ten volumes in this series, covering all regions of the world, constitute the largest printed bibliography of comic art in the world and serve as the beacon guiding the burgeoning fields of animation, comics, and cartooning. They are the definitive works on comic art research and are exhaustive in their inclusiveness, covering all types of publications: academic, trade, popular, fan, etc. from all over the world. Also included in these books are citations to systematically researched academic exercises as well as more ephemeral sources such as fanzines, press articles, and fugitive materials: conference papers, unpublished documents, etc. attesting to Lent's belief that all pieces of information are vital in a new field of study such as comic art.
