What Comes Naturally:

Brainstyles Marlane Miller, 2012-09-25 In this insightful inspirational self help book readers will journey from the hard edged realities of genetics and personal limitations to a limitless spiritual path and personal mastery of one's brainstyle Each of us has a natural brainstyle wired into our genes Your brainstyle is your particular set of gifts the essence of who you are Neurological research has shown that the left and right sides of the brain are accessed at different speeds and in varying sequences in different people This is critically important when making decisions So important that relationships and businesses pivot around those judgments By understanding how your brainstyle mandates your decisions you can deliver your best in any relationship Entertaining and easy self tests help you to identify your brainstyle Clarity and focus follow along with a new foundation for self esteem beyond personal insights to authentic ways of interacting with others that draw out the best in each of you Ethical Issues in Business Peg Tittle, 2000-04-13 The core of this text comprises chapters on all the key issues of business in Canada today Each chapter includes a hypothetical case study and an introduction highlighting key ethical points two academic essays and a real life case study Questions for discussion accompany the essays and case studies The author has also included a general introduction to ethical issues and an overview of ethical theory a section on institutionalizing ethics discussing ethics officers programs codes etc and appendices providing excerpts from important classic contributions to ethical theory and from relevant Canadian law Cultural Conservatism, Political Liberalism James Seaton, 1996 Examines whether cultural studies has been too dismissive of the tradition of literary cultural criticism that preceded it Virus of the Mind Richard Brodie, 2009-05-15 Virus of the Mind is the first popular book devoted to the science of memetics a controversial new field that transcends psychology biology anthropology and cognitive science Memetics is the science of memes the invisible but very real DNA of human society In Virus of the Mind Richard Brodie carefully builds on the work of scientists Richard Dawkins Douglas Hofstadter Daniel Dennett and others who have become fascinated with memes and their potential impact on our lives But Richard goes beyond science and dives into the meat of the issue is the emergence of this new science going to have an impact on our lives like the emergence of atomic physics did in the Cold War He would say the impact will be at least as great While atomic bombs affect everybody's life viruses of the mind touch lives in a more personal and more pernicious way Mind viruses have already infected governments educational systems and inner cities leading to some of the most pervasive and troublesome problems of society today youth gangs the welfare cycle the deterioration of the public schools and ever growing government bureaucracy Viruses of the mind are not a future worry they are here with us now and are evolving to become better and better at their job of infecting us The recent explosion of mass media and the information superhighway has made the earth a prime breeding ground for viruses of the mind Will there be a mental plague Will only some of us survive with our free will intact Richard Brodie weaves together science ethics and current events as he raises these and other very disturbing questions about memes The Ethics of

Richard Rorty Susan Dieleman, David E. McClean, Paul Showler, 2022-05-05 This book contains diverse and critical reflections on Richard Rorty's contributions to ethics, an aspect of his thought that has been relatively neglected. Together they demonstrate that Rorty offers a compelling and coherent ethical vision. The book's chapters, grouped thematically, explore Rorty's emphasis on the importance of moral imagination, social relations, language, and literature as instrumental for ethical self-transformation, as well as for strengthening what Rorty called social hope, which entails constant work toward a more democratic, inclusive, and cosmopolitan society and world. Several contributors address the ethical implications of Rorty's commitment to a vision of political liberalism without philosophical foundations. Others offer critical examinations of Rorty's claim that our private or individual projects of self-creation can or should be held apart from our public goals of ameliorating social conditions and reducing cruelty and suffering. Some contributors explore hurdles that impede the practical applications of certain of Rorty's ideas. The Ethics of Richard Rorty will appeal to scholars and advanced students interested in American philosophy and ethics.

Come Jog with Me George Whitney DVM, 2011-12-27 Many questions come to mind concerning running and runners and public health. Here are a few: 1. Why do runners live an estimated 2 to 2.5 years longer than non-runners? 2. Why are runners rarely overweight? 3. Among runners, do they have the same incidence of the following problems compared to non-runners, that so far the causes of which are basically unknown: Muscular dystrophy, multiple sclerosis, Parkinson's disease, amelanotic lateral sclerosis, and Alzheimer's disease? 4. Why do women runners have so much less breast cancer than non-runners? 5. Why do runners have so much stronger bones than non-runners? 6. Why do runners have less atherosclerosis and therefore fewer strokes and coronary and cardiac artery disease? 7. Why do runners have more HDL (good) cholesterol than non-runners? 8. Why do runners have lower blood pressure than non-runners? 9. Do running women have fewer children who develop Autism than non-running women? 10. Why do runners have better immune systems than non-runners? 11. Does running enhance the production of endomorphins, serotonin, androgens, estrogens, such as oxytocin, ghrelin, and the enzyme troponin, and many others? 12. Is there an advantage of the profound sleep that comes to those who exercise, as with running, and with no insomnia?

Story by Story Thomas Alderson Davis, Robert Arnold Johnson, 2019-07-12 This volume brings together two authors, one a psychiatrist, one a philosopher, to listen to one another's reading of five stories of what it is like to bear a different mental or physical illness. The beginning story, or anchor, for the conversation that unfolds between them is that of a person subject to recurring spells of catatonia, the uncanniest of human conditions. They discover that truly understanding what an illness is calls for understanding it within the context of who suffers it; that to understand illness is to establish the right relation between what is being suffered and who is suffering it. This deceptively simple way of talking, which is labelled 'who-what-talk', will prove more practical and more clarifying than will terms like 'mental' and 'physical'. Furthermore, it has this additional dividend: it intrinsically resists a temptation toward medical prejudice, the inclination for doctors and other caregivers to lose the 'who' of the sufferer through their focus on the 'what' of her illness. Domestic

Varieties of Skepticism James Conant, Andrea Kern, 2014-04-01 This volume brings out the varieties of forms of philosophical skepticism that have continued to preoccupy philosophers for the past of couple of centuries as well as the specific varieties of philosophical response that these have engendered above all in the work of those who have sought to take their cue from Kant Wittgenstein or Cavell and to illuminate how these philosophical approaches are related to and bear upon one another The philosophers brought together in this volume are united by the thought that a proper appreciation of the depth of the skeptical challenge must reveal it to be deeply disquieting in the sense that skepticism threatens not just some set of theoretical commitments but also and fundamentally our very sense of self world and other Second that skepticism is the proper starting point for any serious attempt to make sense of what philosophy is and to gauge the prospects of philosophical progress

Jesus in Paul's Letters: A Pastoral Analysis Edwin

Walhout,2016-07-04 JESUS in PAUL S LETTERS A Pastoral Analysis This project began as an exploration of the somewhat baffling things Paul writes about Jesus in his letters to the churches in Colossae and Ephesus Having completed those studies I turned to the oft misunderstood kenosis passage in Philippians and from there decided to look at all the letters of Paul to see what they meant for Christology Paul is clearly not Christocentric in his theology He is Theocentric so that his Christology is a subset of Theology and his Soteriology becomes a subset of both Theology and Christology Thus trinitarian

Debating Social Rights Conor Gearty,Virginia

Mantouvalou,2010-12-09 Debating Law is a new series that gives scholarly experts the opportunity to offer contrasting perspectives on significant topics of contemporary general interest In this second volume of the series Conor Gearty argues that for rights to work effectively in the wider promotion of social justice they need to be kept as far away as possible from the courts He acknowledges the value of rights language in legal and political debate and accepts that human rights are not solely civil and political with social rights language clearly having a progressive emancipatory dimension However he says that lawyers even well intentioned lawyers damage the achievability of the kind of radical transformation in the priorities of states that a genuine commitment to social rights surely necessitates Virginia Mantouvalou argues that social rights defined as entitlements to the satisfaction of basic needs are as essential for the well being of the individual and the community as long established civil and political rights The real challenge she suggests is how best to give effect to social rights Drawing on examples from around the world she argues for their legalisation and examines the role of courts and the role of legislatures in this process both at a national and a international level
