Landmark Essays on ESL Writing Tony Silva, Paul Kei Matsuda, 2013-10-31 In recent years the number of nonnative speakers of English in colleges and universities in North America has increased dramatically. As a result more and more writing teachers have found themselves working with these English as a Second Language ESL students in writing classes that are designed primarily with monolingual native English speaking students in mind. Since the majority of institutions require these students to enroll in writing courses at all levels it is becoming increasingly important for all writing teachers to be aware of the presence and special linguistic and cultural needs of ESL writers. This increase in the ESL population has over the last 40 years been paralleled by a similar growth in research on ESL writing and writing instruction research that writing teachers need to be familiar with in order to work effectively with ESL writers in writing classrooms of all levels and types. Until recently however this body of knowledge has not been very accessible to writing teachers and researchers who do not specialize in second language research and instruction. This volume is an attempt to remedy this problem by providing a sense of how ESL writing scholarship has evolved over the last four decades. It brings together 15 articles that address various issues in second language writing in general and ESL writing in particular. In selecting articles for inclusion the editors tried to take a principled approach. The articles included in this volume have been chosen from a large database of publications in second language writing. The editors looked for works that mirrored the state of the art when they were published and made a conscious effort to represent a wide variety of perspectives, contributions, and issues in the field. To provide a sense of the evolution of the field this collection is arranged in chronological order. Theme and Thematic Progression in Chinese College Students' English Essays Jing Wei, 2015-12-17 This book focuses on how instruction affects English learners' use of Theme and thematic progression, thematic organization. While thematic organization in learner English has been extensively studied, little research has been done to investigate the effects of instruction on the use of Theme and thematic progression. Adopting a Systemic Functional Grammar approach, this study explores how a ten-week instruction on thematic organization affects Chinese college students' use of Theme and thematic progression by comparing their English essays before and after the instruction with native speaker essays as the research baseline. Second language acquisition researchers, curriculum developers, and foreign language teachers will find this book useful as it not only presents a clear and detailed report of how Chinese college students learn to make better thematic choices but also provides a well-developed instructional package on Theme and thematic progression. Simple Approaches to Writing Short Essays Peter Jia, 2006 This book is aimed at intermediate-level ESL students. It is a compilation of the author's teaching notes; therefore, it can serve as a textbook for ESL teachers. The book is purposely written and organized in very simple, clear, and precise words and structures so that it can also serve as a self-help studying material. Each chapter of the book deals with one suggested approach in essay writing so that students can focus on their learning. It is handy for ESL students to keep it as a reference.

Materials Development Maryam Azarnoosh, Mitra Zeraatpishe, Akram Faravani, Hamid Reza Kargozari, 2016-03-22 Issues in Materials Development provides readers with theoretical foundations and practical aspects of designing materials for EFL/ESL contexts. It starts with discussing some basic and preliminary principles of materials design followed by scrutinizing critical issues in materials development in an objective and systematic way. This ranges from considering learners' needs adopting/adapting selection and gradation of materials to the specific focus of the book on developing various types of materials for the four language skills: pronunciation, ESP vocabulary, and computer-assisted language learning materials. Authenticity of materials to be designed and the inclusion of affective factors to develop motivating materials to engage language learners, in addition to features of materials design at a universal level, are other areas to read about. This book finally tries to open new horizons and possible futuristic approaches to improve today's ELT materials. Negotiating

Academic Literacies Vivian Zamel, Ruth Spack, 2012-08-06 Negotiating Academic Literacies Teaching and Learning Across Languages and Cultures is a cross over volume in the literature between first and second language literacy This anthology of articles brings together different voices from a range of publications and fields and unites them in pursuit of an understanding of how academic ways of knowing are acquired The editors preface the collection of readings with a conceptual framework that reconsiders the current debate about the nature of academic literacies In this volume the term academic literacies denotes multiple approaches to knowledge including reading and writing critically College classrooms have become sites where a number of languages and cultures intersect This is the case not only for students who are in the process of acquiring English but for all learners who find themselves in an academic situation that exposes them to a new set of expectations This book is a contribution to the effort to discover ways of supporting learning across languages and cultures and to transform views about what it means to teach and learn to read and write and to think and know Unique to this volume is the inclusion of the perspectives of writers as well as those of teachers and researchers Furthermore the contributors reveal their own struggles and accomplishments as they themselves have attempted to negotiate academic literacies The chronological ordering of articles provides a historical perspective demonstrating ways in which issues related to teaching and learning across cultures have been addressed over time The readings have consistency in terms of quality depth and passion they raise important philosophical questions even as they consider practical classroom applications The editors provide a series of questions that enable the reader to engage in a generative and exciting process of reflection and inquiry This book is both a reference for teachers who work or plan to work with diverse learners and a text for graduate level courses primarily in bilingual and ESL studies composition studies English education and literacy studies
