The Moving Pageant Rick Allen:

The Moving Pageant Rick Allen, 2006-10-19 The Moving Pageant is the first annotated anthology of writings on London street life. It comprises nearly one hundred extracts from over two centuries of literary life including pieces by Alexander Pope, Jonathan Swift, Daniel Defoe, Samuel Johnson, Eliza Haywood, Horace Walpole, William Hazlitt, William Wordsworth, Charles Dickens, Flora Tristan, Edgar Allan Poe, Charlotte Brontë, Fyodor Dostoyevsky, Octavia Hill, Beatrice Potter, Henry James, Oscar Wilde, Arnold Bennett, Joseph Conrad, H. G. Wells. The volume assembles a rich and varied selection of this abundance of writing showing London as truly unique in its immensity and ultimately supremely representative of our modern urban world in the making. The Moving Pageant comes complete with a superb editor's introduction, illustrations, and biographical and critical commentaries on each of the writers' entries. It also displays many genres and styles of writing and includes street ballads, music hall songs, excerpts from novels, epic poems, and documentary accounts of riots and executions, as well as descriptions of state pageants and processions.

Disease and Crime Robert Peckham, 2013-12-04 Disease and crime are increasingly conflated in the contemporary world. News reports proclaim epidemics of crime while politicians denounce terrorism as a lethal pathological threat. Recent years have even witnessed the development of a new subfield, epidemiological criminology, which merges public health with criminal justice to provide analytical tools for criminal justice practitioners and health care professionals. Little attention, however, has been paid to the historical contexts of these disease and crime equations or to the historical continuities and discontinuities between contemporary invocations of crime as disease and the emergence of criminology, epidemiology, and public health in the second half of the nineteenth century. When and why did this pathologization of crime and criminalization of disease come about? This volume addresses these critical questions, exploring the discursive construction of crime and disease across a range of geographical and historical settings.

Queuing for Beginners Joe Moran, 2010-08-06 Why do so many people go on about queuing? Have we always been obsessed with traffic? And why do so many of us now eat lunch at our computers at desks? We spend our days catching buses and trains, writing emails, shopping, queuing. But we know almost nothing about these activities. Exploring the history of these subjects as they come up during a typical day, starting with eating breakfast and ending with sleeping, Joe Moran tells a story about hidden social and cultural changes in Britain since the Second World War. Drawing on his academic research on everyday life but writing with wit and lucidity for a popular audience, he shows that we know less about ourselves than we think.

The Ascent of the Detective Haia Shpayer-Makov, 2011-09-29 The figure of the detective has long excited the imagination of the wider public and the English police detective has been a special focus of attention in both print and visual media. Yet while much has been written in the last three decades about the history of uniformed policemen in England, no similar work has focused on police detectives. The Ascent of the Detective redresses this by exploring the diverse and often arcane world of English police detectives during the formative period of their profession from 1842 until the First World War.

with special emphasis on the famed detective branch established at Scotland Yard The book starts by illuminating the detectives socioeconomic background how and why they became detectives their working conditions the differences between them and uniformed policemen and their relations with the wider community It then goes on to trace the factors that shaped their changing public image from the embodiment of un-English values to plebeian knights in armour investigating the complex and symbiotic exchange between detectives and journalists and analysing their image as it unfolded in the press in literature and in their own memoirs

Faces of Perfect Ebony Catherine Molineux, 2012-01-02 Though blacks were not often seen on the streets of seventeenth century London they were already capturing the British imagination For two hundred years as Britain shipped over three million Africans to the New World popular images of blacks as slaves and servants proliferated in London art both highbrow and low Catherine Molineux assembles a surprising array of sources in her exploration of this emerging black presence from shop signs tea trays trading cards board games playing cards and song ballads to more familiar objects such as William Hogarth's graphic satires By idealizing black servitude and obscuring the brutalities of slavery these images of black people became symbols of empire to a general populace that had little contact with the realities of slave life in the distant Americas and Caribbean The earliest images advertised the opulence of the British Empire by depicting black slaves and servants as minor exotic characters who gazed adoringly at their masters Later images showed Britons and Africans in friendly gatherings smoking tobacco together for example By 1807 when Britain abolished the slave trade and thousands of people of African descent were living in London as free men and women depictions of black laborers in local coffee houses taverns or kitchens took center stage Molineux's well crafted account provides rich evidence for the role that human traffic played in the popular consciousness and culture of Britain during the seventeenth and eighteenth centuries and deepens our understanding of how Britons imagined their burgeoning empire
