of Bourbon have an alacrity at marrying their old mistresses She was here last year being extremely infected with the Anglomanie though I believe pretty well cured by her journey She is past forty and does not appear ever to have been handsome but is one of the most agreeable and sensible women I ever saw yet I must tell you a trait of her that will not prove my assertion Lady Holland asked her how she liked Strawberry Hill She owned that she did not approve of it and that it was not digne de la solidit Angloise It made me laugh for a quarter of an hour They allot us a character we have not and then draw consequences from that idea which would be absurd even if the idea were just One must not build a Gothic house because the nation is solide Perhaps as everything now in France must be la Grecque she would have liked a hovel if it pretended to be built after Epictetus s but Heaven forbid that I should be taken for a philosopher Is it not amazing that the most sensible people in France can never help being domineered by sounds and general ideas Now everybody must be a g om tre now a philosophe and the moment they are either they are to take up a character and advertise it as if one could not study geometry for one s amusement or for its utility but one must be a geometrician at table or at a visit So the moment it is settled at Paris that the English are solid every Englishman must be wise and if he has a good understanding he must not be allowed to play the fool The Letters of Horace Walpole, Fourth Earl of Orford; Horace Walpole, Paget Jackson
