Test Plans

- A testplan is a structured, usually hierarchical, document that describes the test requirements and contains the statements (4Test scripts and testcases) that implement the test requirements. A testplan is displayed in an easy-to-read outline format, which lists the test requirements in high-level prose descriptions. The structure can be flat or many levels deep.
- Indentation and color indicate the level of detail and various testplan elements.
- Large testplans can be divided into a master plan and
