Grodd,2015-12-18 When we think about expertise we usually consider people who master tasks at a level not reachable by most other people Although we rarely realise it however most humans are experts in many aspects of everyday life This expertise enables us to find our way through a complex environment that is our life For instance we can instantly recognise multiple objects and relations between them to form a meaningful unit such as an office Thus research on expertise is not only important to investigate the cognitive and neural processes within an elite group but it is also a powerful tool to understand how everyone can acquire complex skills The goal of this Research Topic is to shed further light on the common and distinct neural mechanisms that implement various kinds of expertise We broadly define expertise as skill in any perceptual cognitive social or motor domain with the common core being optimised information processing due to knowledge acquired from repeated experiences Thus we are interested in the full range of mental processes modulated or modified by expertise from simple object or pattern recognition to complex decision making or problem solving in a particular domain These domains can range from everyday or occupational expertise to sports and rather artificial domains such as board games In all cases the aim should be to elucidate how the brain implements these sometimes incredible feats We are particularly interested in connecting cognitive theories about expertise and expertise related performance differences with models and data on the neural implementation of expertise We welcome original research contributions using the full range of behavioural neuroscience methods as well as theoretical methodological or historical reviews and opinion papers focusing on any of the above mentioned aspects Who's Who of Canadian Women, 1999-2000 Gillian Holmes,1999-06-01 Who s Who of Canadian Women is a guide to the most powerfuland innovative women in Canada Celebrating the talents and achievement of over 3 700 women Who s Who of Canadian Women includes women from all over Canada in all fields including agriculture academia law business politics journalism religion sports and entertainment Each biography includes such information as personal data education career history current employment affiliations interests and honours A special comment section reveals personal thoughts goals and achievements of the profiled individual Entries are indexed by employment of affiliation for easy reference Published every two years Who s Who of Canadian Women selects its biographees on merit alone This collection is an essential resource for all those interested in the achievements of Canadian women Forthcoming Books Rose Arny,2002 Books and Pamphlets, Including Serials and Contributions to Periodicals Library of Congress.
