

CONCLUSIONS

Shanghai's transformation into a free port is a landmark achievement for the country's economic reform. It will help to attract foreign investment, create jobs, and improve the country's trade relations with the world.

Thinking is intentional—it is always about something. It is representational—it represents the world. It is propositional—it makes claims about the world. It is assertive—it asserts that its claims are true. It is truth-apt—it can be true or false.

This is how planning often goes. When the numbers don't add, a planner shrugs (sighs) and explains away what calculation requires management to do differently.
