Exploring Emotions, Aesthetics and Wellbeing in Science Education Research Alberto Bellocchi, Cassie Quigley, Kathrin Otrrel-Cass, 2016-10-19 This book addresses new research directions focusing on the emotional and aesthetic nature of teaching and learning science informing more general insights about wellbeing It considers methodological traditions including those informed by philosophy sociology psychology and education and how they contribute to our understanding of science education In this collection the authors provide accounts of the underlying ontological epistemological methodological perspectives and theoretical assumptions that inform their work and that of others Each chapter provides a perspective on the study of emotion aesthetics or wellbeing using empirical examples or a discussion of existing literature to unpack the theoretical and philosophical traditions inherent in those works. This volume offers a diverse range of approaches for anyone interested in researching emotions, aesthetics, or wellbeing. It is ideal for research students who are confronted with a cosmos of research perspectives but also for established researchers in various disciplines with an interest in researching emotions, affect, aesthetics, or wellbeing. El-Hi Textbooks and Serials in Print, 1985

Revaluing Horticultural Skills Hannah Pitt, 2024-11-29. This book highlights the value and skill of horticultural work through stories of food cultivation. It examines the difficulties that arise from the perception that this type of activity is unskilled and the importance of acknowledging the expertise involved in growing food. The book provides a rare focus on horticulture as a vital part of agri-food systems, offering a social science perspective on the sector's current and past characteristics. It presents new primary research into horticultural work and workers across UK food growing, using close attention to their abilities to highlight the depth of their knowledge and learning. This is set in the context of global agri-food regimes which press producers to seek ever more precarious labour, undermining food justice. By examining these in the context of internationally connected supply chains, it characterises injustices which recur globally and across food system labour. The conceptual argument starts from an ecological definition of skill as a social practice embedded within its socio-economic landscape, developing this perspective beyond its association with artisanal contexts. Together, the empirical and conceptual materials highlight the fallacy of discourse which tends to individualise skill and the challenges around recruitment into food production. To counter this, the book proposes a more collective approach to fostering healthy skills ecosystems, reaching towards commoning through examples of horticultural communities seeking this in the meantime. It will appeal to postgraduate researchers and professionals interested in food systems, their workers, and related topics of horticultural education, training, and human resources, labour migration, and politics of injustice. It draws on perspectives from rural studies, human geography, and sociology and connects with international debates in these fields. Food-focused scholars and activists will find data and insights to support calls for better work in food systems. Science Curriculum Resource Handbook, 1992

Field Trips in Environmental Education Martin Storksdieck, 2011-01-01. Hauptbeschreibung: Field trips are a popular method for introducing students to concepts, ideas, and experiences that cannot be provided in a classroom environment. This is particularly true for transdisciplinary areas of teaching and learning such as science or environmental education. While field trips are generally viewed by educators as beneficial to teaching and learning and by students as a cherished alternative to classroom instruction, educational research paints a more complex picture. At a time when school systems demand proof of the educational value of field trips, large gaps often exist. Encyclopedia of Data Science and Machine Learning Wang, John, 2023-01-20.
