Policing Freedom Martine Jean, 2023-08-17 Explores the transformation of punishment in nineteenth century Brazil and its intersection with changes in labor relations in the Atlantic World Black and Slave David M. Goldenberg, 2017-05-22 Studies of the Curse of Ham the belief that the Bible consigned blacks to everlasting servitude confuse and conflate two separate origins stories etiologies one of black skin and the other of black slavery This work unravels the etiologies and shows how the Curse an etiology of black slavery evolved from an earlier etiology explaining the existence of dark skinned people We see when where why and how an original mythic tale of black origins morphed into a story of the origins of black slavery and how in turn the second then supplanted the first as an explanation for black skin In the process we see how formulations of the Curse changed over time depending on the historical and social contexts reflecting and refashioning the way blackness and blacks were perceived In particular two significant developments are uncovered First a curse of slavery originally said to affect various dark skinned peoples was eventually applied most commonly to black Africans Second blackness originally incidental to the curse in time became part of the curse itself Dark skin now became an intentional marker of servitude the visible sign of the blacks degradation and in the process deprecating black skin itself The Iron Furnace; or, Slavery and Secession John H. Aughey, 2019-12-13 In The Iron Furnace or Slavery and Secession John H Aughey presents a compelling critique of the intertwined nature of slavery and the political tensions leading to the American Civil War Utilizing a rhetorical style that merges passionate prose with rhetorical questions Aughey probes the moral dilemmas of his time The literary context of this work is rooted in the antebellum period encapsulating the socio political landscape that culminated in secession and conflict and serves as both a historical document and a polemic against the institution of slavery John H Aughey a Southern born abolitionist and minister found his convictions at odds with the society of his birth informing his critical perspective on slavery His experiences witnessing the moral decay wrought by slavery alongside his commitment to social justice motivated him to confront the institution head on in this book Aughey s background and personal beliefs infuse his writing with a sense of urgency and moral imperative that resonates deeply with contemporary issues This important work is highly recommended for readers interested in the historical roots of American conflict and the ethical considerations surrounding slavery Aughey s eloquent prose and passionate arguments make this a must read for anyone seeking to understand the complexities of American history and the enduring legacy of slavery The Literary World ,1850

Jason T. Sharples, 2020-06-19 A thought provoking history of slaveholders fear of the people they enslaved and its consequences From the Stono Rebellion in 1739 to the Haitian Revolution of 1791 to Nat Turner s Rebellion in 1831 slave insurrections have been understood as emblematic rejections of enslavement the most powerful and perhaps the only way for slaves to successfully challenge the brutal system they endured In The World That Fear Made Jason T Sharples orients the mirror to those in power who were preoccupied with their exposure to insurrection Because enslavers in British North America and the Caribbean methodically terrorized slaves and anticipated just vengeance colonial officials consolidated their regime around the dread of rebellion As Sharples shows through a comprehensive data set colonial officials launched investigations into dubious rumors of planned revolts twice as often as actual slave uprisings occurred In most of these cases magistrates believed they had discovered plans for insurrection coordinated by a network of enslaved men just in time to avert the uprising Their crackdowns known as conspiracy scares could last for weeks and involve hundreds of suspects They sometimes brought the execution or banishment of dozens of slaves at a time and loss and heartbreak many times over Mining archival records Sharples shows how colonists from New York to Barbados tortured slaves to solicit confessions of baroque plots that were strikingly consistent across places and periods Informants claimed that conspirators took direction from foreign agents timed alleged rebellions for a holiday such as Easter planned to set fires that would make it easier to ambush white people in the confusion and coordinated the uprising with European or Native American invasion forces Yet as Sharples demonstrates these scripted accounts rarely resembled what enslaved rebels actually did when they took up arms. Ultimately he argues conspiracy scares locked colonists and slaves into a cycle of terror that bound American society together through shared racial fear. The Cambridge Companion to Global Literature and Slavery Laura Murphy, 2022-12-22. The Cambridge Companion to Global Literature and Slavery reveals the way recent scholarship in the field of slavery studies has taken a more expansive turn in terms of both the geographical and the temporal. These new studies perform area studies driven analyses of the representation of slavery from national or regional literary traditions that are not always considered by scholars of slavery and explore the diverse range of unfreedoms depicted therein. Literary scholars of China, Central Asia, the Middle East, and Africa provide original scholarly arguments about some of the most trenchant themes that arise in the literatures of slavery: authentication and legitimation, ethnic formation and globalization, displacement, exile, and alienation, representation and metaphorization, and resistance and liberation. This Cambridge Companion to Global Literature and Slavery is designed to highlight the shifting terrain in literary studies of slavery and collectively challenge the reductive notion of what constitutes slavery and its representation.
