

The Skin (Integumentary System)

Basic Structure of the Skin

1. The skin has three layers of complexity, each in order from the surface (epidermis) down (dermis) and hypodermis. Each skin layer has its own role in the body's defence and regulation of the internal environment.

The three layers of the skin are:

- Epidermis
- Dermis
- Hypodermis

Epidermis: The outermost layer of the skin.

Dermis: The middle layer of the skin.

Hypodermis: The innermost layer of the skin.

Epidermis

2. The skin is the largest organ of the body. It covers the entire body and is the first line of defence against the environment.

3. The skin is made up of two main layers: the epidermis and the dermis. The epidermis is the outer layer and the dermis is the inner layer.

Epidermis: The outer layer of the skin, which is made up of several layers of cells. It is the most visible part of the skin and is responsible for its color and texture.

Dermis: The middle layer of the skin, which is made up of connective tissue. It contains blood vessels, nerves, and hair follicles.

Hypodermis: The innermost layer of the skin, which is made up of fat. It is responsible for the skin's elasticity and ability to store energy.
