Anderson,1991-11-04 Anderson charts the construction of Chinatown in the minds and streets of the white community of Vancouver over a hundred year period She shows that Chinatown from the negative stereotyping of the late nineteenth and early twentieth centuries to its current status as an ethnic neighbourhood has been stamped by changing European ideologies of race and the hegemonic policies those ideas have shaped. The very existence of the district is the result of a regime of cultural domination that continues to exist today. Anderson clearly rejects the concept of race as a means of distinguishing between groups of human beings. She points out that because the implicit acceptance of public beliefs about race affects the types of questions asked by researchers, the issue of the ontological status of race is as critical for commentators on society as it is for scientists studying human variation. Anderson applies this fresh approach toward the concept of race to a critical examination of popular media and academic treatments of the Chinatown in Vancouver.

A Guidebook to Contemporary Architecture in Vancouver Christopher, Veronica, 2012-03-23. A Guidebook to Contemporary Architecture in Vancouver explores buildings constructed as the city experienced unprecedented growth beginning with Expo 86 and continuing through the 2010 Olympic Winter Games. The guidebook features buildings and public spaces grouped by areas with maps so that a visitor can create walking tours including ones through downtown Vancouver, Richmond, the North Shore, and Kitsilano. The convenient size and format, including an index, allows visitors to put this guidebook in a pocket and go.

Street-Level Architecture Conrad Kickert, Hans Karssenberg, 2022-08-04. This book provides the tools to maintain and rebuild the interaction between architecture and public space. Despite the best intentions of designers and planners, interactive frontages have dwindled over the past century in Europe and North America. This book demonstrates why even our best intentions for interactive frontages are currently unable to turn a swelling tide of economic and technological evolution, land consolidation, introversion, stratification, and contagious decline. It uses these lessons to offer concrete locational programming, design, and management strategies to maximize street-level interaction and trust between street-level architecture, its inhabitants, and the city. This book demonstrates that designers, developers, planners, and managers ultimately have to create the right preconditions for inhabitants and passersby to bring frontages to life. These preconditions connect architecture to its urban, social, economical, and technological context. Only the right frontage in the right context, with the right design, the right inhabitation, and the right attitude to the city, will become part of the ecosystem of trust and interaction that supports public life. This book empowers the many participants in this ecosystem to build, inhabit, and enjoy truly urbane architecture.

Red Light Labour Elya M. Durisin, Emily van der Meulen, Chris Bruckert, 2018-09-01. In 2013, the Supreme Court ruled in Canada v Bedford that key prostitution laws were unconstitutional. The decision provoked wide interest but little new insight into sex work. Red Light Labour addresses Canada's new legal regime regulating sex work through the analysis of past and present policy approaches and consideration of how laws and those who uphold them have constructed, controlled, and criminalized sex workers, their clients, and their workspaces. This groundbreaking collection also offers nuanced interpretations of commercial sexual labour that foreground the personal perspectives of workers and activists. The contributors highlight the Neuroarchitecture Frank Suurenbroek, Gideon Spanjar, 2023 How do we design the streets in large scale housing projects so that they retain a human scale In Western cities the need to house growing numbers of inhabitants frequently involves the introduction of ever taller tower blocks Although such urban projects are designed to maintain a human scale through attention to residential characteristics it remains unclear how users actually experience high rise and other forms of density at street level This book seeks to remedy that by exploring the new hybrid field of neuroarchitecture in which researchers use advanced technology to find out how the body responds to sensory stimuli from the built environment Neuroarchitecture introduces the discipline and systematically analyses examples of high density streets in Western cities like Amsterdam Toronto Manchester and Oslo What design solutions have been employed there And how are the places experienced visually What lessons we can draw about designing with a human scale Neuroarchitecture challenges conventional design guidelines and offers practical tips for enhancing the human scale of densely built environments
