Understanding Protein Most people don't get enough protein whether they eat animal products or not but one of the most common questions vegans hear is What about protein Fortunately there are plenty of plant based options available for you Why You Need Protein Protein is made up of a number of different amino acids Since different types of amino acids are found in different types of foods it's best to have a good variety in your diet particularly if you aren't eating animal products The human body can't produce all 21 amino acids that are necessary for growth there are nine that need to be eaten By including a range of protein types in your daily diet you can ensure that your body stays healthy and strong Since proteins are what the body uses to build cells it's an essential part of a healthy diet Keep in mind that your body can't actually store amino acids for later so you need to include protein in your meals every day to ensure your body has what it needs How much is enough As a general rule of thumb men should try to ingest around 56 grams of protein per day and women need around 46 grams This is what you should aim for but some people require less and others need more You'll notice that protein helps you feel full and provides some energy When combined with carbohydrates and fat the vital building block can help protect you against malnutrition and other health issues Protein is also necessary to repair muscles if you have been working out or if you are an athlete For more information click on the BUY BUTTON Tag Build Muscle Rapid Weight Loss Gluten Free Dairy Free Bodybuilding Carb Cycling Calorie Counting low carb high fat diet Vegan Recipes Vegetarian High Protein Cookbook Vegan For Weight Loss Build Muscle Protein Diet ketogenic diet ketogenic diet recipes ketogenic diet recipes for beginners cookbook weight loss ketogenic diet recipes for weight loss ketogenic diet plan fat loss ketogenic diet mistakes vegan diet vegan cookbook vegan diet for beginners paleo paleo diet whole 30 vegetarian
