Corinth 1862 Timothy B. Smith, 2016-10-07 In the spring of 1862 there was no more important place in the western Confederacy perhaps in all the South than the tiny town of Corinth Mississippi Major General Henry W Halleck commander of Union forces in the Western Theater reported to Washington that Richmond and Corinth are now the great strategical points of war and our success at these points should be insured at all hazards In the same vein Confederate General P G T Beauregard declared to Richmond that If defeated at Corinth we lose the Mississippi Valley and probably our cause Those were odd sentiments concerning a town scarcely a decade old By this time however it sat at the junction of the South's two most important rail lines and had become a major strategic locale Despite its significance Corinth has received comparatively little attention from Civil War historians and has been largely overshadowed by events at Shiloh Antietam and Perryville Timothy Smith's panoramic and vividly detailed new look at Corinth corrects that neglect focusing on the nearly year long campaign that opened the way to Vicksburg and presaged the Confederacy's defeat in the West Combining big picture strategic and operational analysis with ground level views Smith covers the spring siege the vicious attacks and counterattacks of the October battle and the subsequent occupation He has drawn extensively on hundreds of eyewitness accounts to capture the sights sounds and smells of battle and highlight the command decisions of Halleck Beauregard Ulysses S Grant Sterling Price William S Rosecrans and Earl Van Dorn This is also the first in depth examination of Corinth following the creation of a new National Park Service center located at the site Weaving together an immensely compelling tale that places the reader in the midst of war's maelstrom it substantially revises and enlarges our understanding of Corinth and its crucial importance in the Civil War
