Example (1) given credit

Although not consistent with the recommendations for including these more specialized areas, a student can earn credit for coursework in "the more representative studies previously mentioned" (emphasis by study in history) and "representative" in general. "Other" studies that are likely to provide a representative sample of the study from that subject's past, including studies that have been changed.

1. "Students who are interested in the study of the history of the United States, including the study of the history of the United States and the history of the United States, should consider this course."
2. "The College of Arts and Sciences will accept the course in the history of the United States as a representative of the study of the history of the United States. The study of the history of the United States is a study of the history of the United States."
3. "Students who are interested in the study of the history of the United States, including the study of the history of the United States, should consider this course. The study of the history of the United States is a study of the history of the United States."
4. "This course has provided a representative sample of the study of the history of the United States, including the study of the history of the United States, and the study of the history of the United States.
