Zimsec Geo Paper Section:

Education and Development in Zimbabwe Edward Shizha, Michael T. Kariwo, 2012-01-01 The book represents a contribution to policy formulation and design in an increasingly knowledge economy in Zimbabwe. It challenges scholars to think about the role of education, its funding, and the egalitarian approach to widening access to education. The nexus between education, democracy, and policy change is a complex one. The book provides an illuminating account of the constantly evolving notions of national identity, language, and citizenship from the Zimbabwean experience. The book discusses educational successes and challenges by examining the ideological effects of social, political, and economic considerations on Zimbabwe's colonial and postcolonial education. Currently, literature on current educational challenges in Zimbabwe is lacking, and there is very little published material on these ideological effects on educational development in Zimbabwe. This book is likely to be one of the first on the impact of social, political, and economic meltdown on education. The book is targeted at local and international academics and scholars of history of education and comparative education, scholars of international education and development, undergraduate and graduate students, and professors who are interested in educational development in Africa, particularly Zimbabwe. Notwithstanding, the book is a valuable resource to policy makers, educational administrators, and researchers, and the wider community. Shizha and Kariwo's book is an important and illuminating addition on the effects of social, political, and economic trajectories on education and development in Zimbabwe. It critically analyses the crucial specifics of the Zimbabwean situation by providing an in-depth discourse on education at this historical juncture. The book offers new insights that may be useful for an understanding of not only the Zimbabwean case but also education in other African countries. Rosemary Gordon, Senior Lecturer in Educational Foundations, University of Zimbabwe. Ranging in temporal scope from the colonial era and its elitist legacy through the golden era of populist universal elementary education to the disarray of contemporary socioeconomic crisis, covering elementary through higher education and touching thematically on everything from the pernicious effects of social adjustment programmes through the local deprofessionalization of teaching, this text provides a comprehensive, wide-ranging and yet carefully detailed account of education in Zimbabwe. This engagingly written portrayal will prove illuminating not only to readers interested in Zimbabwe's education specifically but more widely to all who are interested in how the sociopolitical shapes education, how ideology, policy, international pressures, economic factors, and shifts in values collectively forge the historical and contemporary character of a country's education. Handel Kashope Wright, Professor of Education, University of British Columbia. Teacher in Zimbabwe, 2014

Space Fostering African Societies Annette Froehlich, 2021-02-22 This peer-reviewed book provides detailed insights into how space and its applications are and can be used to support the development of the full range and diversity of African societies as encapsulated in the African Union's Agenda 2063. Following on from Part 1, which was highly acclaimed by the space community, it focuses on the role of space in supporting the UN Sustainable Development Goals in Africa but covers an even more extensive array of relevant and timely topics addressing all facets of African development. It demonstrates that while there have been significant achievements in recent years in terms of economic and social development which have lifted many of Africa's people out of poverty, there is still a great deal that needs to be done to fulfill the basic needs of Africa's citizens and afford them the dignity they deserve. To this end, space is already being employed in diverse fields of human endeavor to serve Africa's goals for its future, but there is much room for further incorporation of space systems and data. Providing a comprehensive overview of the role space is playing in helping Africa achieve its developmental aspirations, the book will appeal to both students and professionals in fields such as space studies, international relations, governance, and social and rural development.

GAC Special Paper Geological Association of Canada, 1956

Giant Metallic Deposits Peter Laznicka, 2010-09-02. Metals in the earth's crust are very unevenly distributed and traditionally a small number of ore deposit districts or countries have dominated the world supply and have influenced commodity prices. The importance of exceptionally large or rich deposits has greatly increased in the age of globalization when a small number of international corporations dominate the metals market based on few very large ore deposits practically anywhere in the world. Search for giant orebodies thus drives the exploration industry not only the in-house teams of large internationals but also hundreds of junior companies hoping to sell their significant discoveries to the big boys. Geological characteristics of giant metallic deposits and their setting and the politico-economic constraints of access to and exploitation in prospective areas have been a hot topic in the past fifteen years but the knowledge generated and published has been one-sided, scattered, and fragmented. This is the first comprehensive book on the subject that provides a body of solid facts rather than rapidly changing theories written by the author of the Empirical Metallogeny book series and founder of the Data Metallogena visual knowledge system on mineral deposits of the world who has had an almost 40 years long international academic and industrial experience. The book will provide abundant material for comparative research in metallogeny, practical information for the explorationists as to where to look for the elephants, and some inspiration for commodity investors.

4-D Framework of Continental Crust Robert D. Hatcher, 2007. This book contains landmark papers on the processes of formation of continental crust from its beginnings in the Archean to modern processes as well as discussions of several ancient and modern orogenic belts. The book is international in scope with contributions from geoscientists dealing with crustal processes on five continents and articles from more than 50 non-US authors and co-authors.
