

My Experience in Transformational Leadership - Essay Example Essay

In the work environment especially when I was a military commandant, I managed to transform the military structure into that which shows a high level of dynamism. I expressed both transformational and laissez-faire type of leadership to manage the senior and junior employees. In the military, we had various departments and departmental heads that are responsible for monitoring and maintenance of various activities within and without the camp. Therefore, the delegation of duties in relation to areas of specialization became paramount in all departments so as to achieve teamwork and proper coordination among the military officers. Also, I believed in giving less guidance to the subordinates and tried to achieve the set objectives and control activities with less obvious means. Besides, I believed that people can work well when they had been left alone to respond to their tasks and responsibilities in their best way possible. Given that the military has its guidance, rules and regulations which are given unto the army officers during training, I was giving the officers freedom to make decisions, other leaders to provide tools and the necessary resources which are needed to meet the organizational set objectives. Also, as more of the powers to make decisions were given to the followers, yet as a leader, I was responsible for the teams' decision and actions and made a decision which ensures that the entire military camp remains, speak one voice and operate in one accord. It thus shows that other officers knew what they are supposed to do but a little guidance is given unto them when they seem to be losing trajectory. However, there were some challenges which were arising as I deploy the Laissez Faire type of leadership to administer the operations of the National Military. They include other leaders having a perception that I was not involved in the operations which others especially the followers were doing as per the freedom of decision making was concerned. At times, the roles were not properly designed, and I used to blame members of the team for not achieving the set objectives. However, given that in the military people work as a team, my leadership proved to be successful, and I had achieved the set goals of the employees as a commandant. For example, I successfully led the National War against the Iraq terrorist Saddam Hussein and managed to accomplish the rescue missions against the abductions and piracy in both sea and air.

However, after the experience got in the military and the drawbacks which I did experience before, I decided to find more about leadership and how I can improve it so as to use the past solve the present and future problems. Through research and conversations, I had with other leaders; I can affirm that I had had a growth and a change in perceptions of leadership. Growth in leadership had enabled me to adopt the transformational type of leadership. These came after I had retired from the military and join the public sector. I was employed as the Minister of Internal Defense and Industry. It forced me to abandon the YES SIR slogan in the military since it couldn't work in the corporate world where different ideologies and propositions are put in place before indulging in the decision-making process. By adopting the transformational leadership style, I managed to experience performance beyond expectations. The main motivation behind the performance was strong indulgence in the creation of inspiring visions for the future of the nation, motivating the employees to buy into achieving the set goals, objectives and visions, managing the delivery of the visions and building a stronger trust based relationship with other people. It thus enabled the organization to build the model of integrity and fairness, every department to set clear goals and objectives facilitate effective service delivery to the public. In addition, it is a policy that made the employees decision-

Transformative Learning through Creative Life Writing Celia Hunt, 2013-06-26 Arising from a research project conducted over two years Transformative Learning through Creative Life Writing examines the effects of fictional autobiography on adult learners sense of self Starting from a teaching and learning perspective Hunt draws together ideas from psychodynamic psychotherapy literary and learning theory and work in the cognitive and neurosciences of the self and consciousness to argue that creative life writing undertaken in a supportive learning environment alongside opportunities for critical reflection has the power to transform the way people think and learn It does this by opening them up to a more embodied self experience which increases their awareness of the source of their thinking in bodily feeling and enables them to develop a more reflexive approach to learning Hunt locates this work within recent developments in the influential field of transformative learning She also identifies it as a form of therapeutic education arguing contrary to those who say that this approach leads to a diminished sense of self that it can help people to develop a stronger sense of agency whether for writing or learning or relations with others Topics covered include Creative writing as a tool for personal and professional development The transformative benefits and challenges of creative writing as a therapeutic activity The relationships between literary structures and the processes of thinking and feeling The role of cognitive emotional learning in adult education Collaborative learning and the role of the group This book will interest teachers in adult further and higher education who wish to use creative life writing as a tool for learning as well as health care professionals seeking art based techniques for use in their practice It will also prove useful to academics interested in the relationship between education and psychotherapy and in the theory and practice of transformative learning Additionally it will appeal to writers seeking a deeper understanding of the creative process

Teaching STEM Education through Dialogue and Transformative Learning Catherine Montgomery, Juan Manuel Fernández-Cárdenas, 2020-05-21 This book focuses on reconceptualising the teaching of STEM education through dialogue and transformative learning presenting examples of research from Mexico and the UK It centres on research which introduces critical pedagogies in the teaching of STEM where in the past there has been an over emphasis on content and a technicist perspective on science The research in this book considers critical and dialogic approaches to teacher education for STEM subjects and emphasises the crucial role that teachers play in improving life chances for marginalised young people and their communities STEM education is not just a way of improving a country s GDP but if taught through dialogic and transformative pedagogies it can enable teachers to empower students to improve their own lives The collaboration between these two countries is timely and comes as Mexico is developing and emerging as a key global economic nation The work presented here engages in theoretical and empirical work that has application beyond the two countries This book was originally published as a special issue of the Journal of Education for Teaching
