TOPIC-PRINCIPAL PROFESSIONAL DEVELOPMENT

PROBLEM STATEMENT

Principal leadership is correlated with student achievement, and there are significant links between specific principal behaviors and student achievement (Peters et al., 2015; Tang et al., 2018). Researchers posit that "effective leadership means more than knowing what to do—it's knowing when, how, and why to do it" (Peters et al., 2015, p. 2). However, there is limited research on the principal, as a leader, specifically principal professional development, and its impact on principal leader effectiveness (Davidson, 2019).
Researchers can identify the types of professional development experiences that are most likely to build principals' capacity to be successful leaders, recognize retention needs, and augment student achievement over the long-term.

PURPOSE OF THE STUDY

The purpose of this study is to explore the perceptions of principals regarding their preparedness to lead school improvement efforts. The study will explore the following research questions:
1. How do principals perceive their preparedness to lead school improvement efforts?
2. What factors influence principals' perceptions of their preparedness to lead school improvement efforts?
3. How do principals' perceptions of their preparedness to lead school improvement efforts relate to their leadership behaviors and student achievement?

POPULATION AND METHODOLOGY

The research participants will be principals of public schools in North Carolina. The study will explore the perceptions of principals regarding their preparedness to lead school improvement efforts. The study will explore the following research questions:
1. How do principals perceive their preparedness to lead school improvement efforts?
2. What factors influence principals' perceptions of their preparedness to lead school improvement efforts?
3. How do principals' perceptions of their preparedness to lead school improvement efforts relate to their leadership behaviors and student achievement?

BACKGROUND

The role of principals has become increasingly important in the past decade, and it is now widely recognized that the principal is the most important person in the school (Leithwood & Stiegelmeier, 2006). The principal's role is to lead the school in a way that ensures the highest quality of education for all students. This role includes setting the vision for the school, developing the school's culture, and ensuring that the school is a safe and supportive learning environment for all students.

Science, Learning, Identity , 2007-01-01 Over the recent years identity has become one of the most central theoretical concept and topics of scholarship in a number of disciplines including science education In this volume leading science educators articulate in carefully prepared case studies their theoretical perspective on science learning and identity

More importantly the authors of the chapters that in the different parts of the book engage each other in a collaboratively written chapter concerning some of the central issues that have arisen from their individual studies and in particular they engage each other over the similarities and differences between their approaches This book which features detailed case studies of identity as both resource and outcomes of learners in a variety of settings will be of interest to anyone concerned with learning science in and out of schools The book also caters for readers who have wondered about how identity mediates science learning and simultaneously how engagement in science related tasks and activities mediates the emergence and development of identities The general tenor of all chapters is a cultural historical and sociocultural framework that is brought to issues of identity thereby inherently transcending the individual person and linking identity to cultural possibilities
