Thomas Groome Teaching Theology in a Technological Age Doru Costache, James R. Harrison, 2015-11-25 The iGeneration has learned to adapt rapidly to technological change Tech savvy students multi task with consummate ease accessing email on smart phones researching assignments on tablets reading a book on Kindle while drinking a flat white and listening to iTunes in the background How does the tertiary educational curriculum meet the learning needs of students whose attention transitions rapidly between mediums and messages The complexity and pace of modern technological change has left the theological educational sector gasping as it struggles to devise pedagogically engaging online distance learning materials in traditional disciplines and teach units with significant relational and pastoral components The technological benefits are vast the instant availability of information unprecedented and the opportunities to provide theological education to groups marginalised by the tyranny of distance and time enormous How should the theological sector address these challenges and opportunities Although the benefits are massive the media is replete with stories of the casualties of technological change including cyber bullying internet predators the psychic damage from trolls addiction to gaming and issues of body image among others How should the theological sector drawing upon its scriptural and teaching heritage come to grips with the deficits spawned by the technological revolution What is the theological pastoral social and pedagogic responsibility of theology teachers in nurturing this new generation Teaching Theology in a Technological Age draws together in an inspiring volume a series of cutting edge essays from Australian New Zealand and South African scholars on the learning and teaching of theology in a digital age Theological Education Andrew M. Reimagining Ministerial Formation

David Heywood, 2021-04-30 The Church is currently experiencing a transition in the way it understands and practises both mission and ministry It is to be outward looking engaging with the wider community involving all its members in mission and clergy are to play the role of enablers and equippers of the ministry of the whole church However ministerial formation in colleges and courses throughout the country lags behind this emerging consensus Theological education is still largely based on academic models Reimagining Ministerial Formation offers a new way forward where ministry comes to be about the whole church and ministerial formation is about collaboration between clergy and laity It argues strongly for a shift away from front loaded training to a new focus on formation as a life long process

Spirituality in Mission John Amalraj, Geoffrey W. Hahn, 2018-01-03

Authors from eighteen countries give us their perspectives on biblical principles and cultural expressions of spirituality particularly as the church engages in God's mission The anthology of texts enriches our understanding of the depth and the meaning of being spiritual and the diversity of forms to live out the Christian faith The issue today is how spirituality should direct and guide a daily life as followers of Jesus in the engagement in the mission of God No doubt that it has to do with our inner life and our relationship to God but it is in showing our love and concern to others that we prove our love to God according to the Apostle John 1 John 4 Mission without spirituality will only be a human effort to convince people of religious theories Spirituality without a missionary involvement of the church will not express God's desire that the transforming gospel reaches every person This book will help you rethink your understanding of what is spiritual revisit your own spiritual journey and appreciate the different forms of spirituality as they are described and performed around the globe
