

CHIEFTAIN VERSUS OTHER HIGH-STORAGE MOTOR HOMES

How high storage motor homes increase the storage space by substantially increasing the height, which may affect handling and stability.

Because the Chieftain was designed from the ground up as a high storage, low profile motor home, Roadway's engineers were able to keep the roof height low.

Chieftain has a lower center of gravity and reduced weight of more than most listed motor homes.

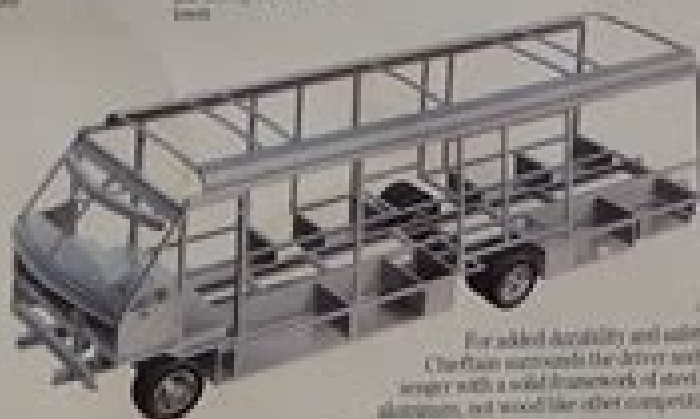

Chieftain's smooth, single piece aluminum, with no exposed steel in most parts, improves Chieftain's looks and provides protection from rust.

The interior storage bins have up to twice the space of a standard motor home and add many convenient details. All the space is easily accessible.

Compared to other Chieftains, with a single slide, there is one less extension step than most high storage motor homes.

Because they designed Chieftain from the ground up, Roadway's engineers were able to improve the floor height of motor homes with the Chieftain's extra storage space. This means more storage space, more stability and less floor height and weight.

The extra space allows for more storage space. Further evidence Chieftain has for the road.

For added durability and safety the Chieftain motor home has the driver and passengers with a solid framework of steel and aluminum, not wood like other competitive motor homes.

The storage compartments are formed with ribbed aluminum and steel panels for extra strength and durability. The reinforced floor that runs between the chassis rails to allow more even heat distribution and efficient use of interior space.
