Post-Wall German Cinema and National History Mary-Elizabeth O'Brien, 2014 German history films that focus on utopianism and political dissent and their effect on German identity since 1989 Since unification a radical shift has taken place in Germans view of their country's immediate past with 1989 replacing 1945 as the primary caesura. The cold war division, the failed socialist state, the 68 student movement and the Red Army Faction historical flashpoints involving political oppression, civil disobedience and the longing for utopian solutions to social injustice have come to be seen as decisive moments in a collective history that unites East and West even as it divides them. Telling stories about a shared past, establishing foundational myths and finding commonalities of experience are pivotal steps in the construction of national identity. Such nation building is always incomplete but the cinema provides an important forum in which notions of German history and national identity can be consumed, negotiated and contested. This book looks at history films made since 1989 exploring how utopianism and political dissent have shaped German identity. It studies the genre including popular successes, critical successes and perceived failures as a set of texts and a discursive network gauging which conventions and storylines are resilient. At issue is the overriding question to what extent do these films contribute to a narrative that legitimizes the German nation state.

Mary Elizabeth O'Brien is Professor of German and The Courtney and Steven Ross Chair in Interdisciplinary Studies at Skidmore College. The Temperance Mirror ..., 1890 Buddhist Poetry and Colonialism

Stephen C. Berkwitz, 2013-01-21. Many researchers have explored the impact of British and French Orientalism in the reinterpretations of Buddhism in South and Southeast Asia during the nineteenth and early twentieth centuries. Less noticed, however, and infrequently discussed is the impact of Portuguese colonialists and missionaries upon Buddhist communities in the sixteenth and seventeenth centuries across Asia. Stephen C. Berkwitz addresses this theme by examining five poetic works by Alagiavanna Mukaveti b 1552, a renowned Sinhala poet who participated directly in the convergence of local and trans-local cultures in early modern Sri Lanka. Berkwitz follows the written works of the poet from his position in the court of a Sinhala king through the cultural upheavals of warfare and the expansion of colonial rule and finally to his eventual conversion to Catholicism and employment under the Portuguese Crown. In so doing, Berkwitz explores the transformations in religion and literature rendered by what was arguably the earliest sustained encounter between Asian Buddhists and European colonialists in world history. Alagiavanna's poetic works give expression to both a discourse of nostalgia for the local religious and cultural order in the late sixteenth century and a discourse of cultural assimilation with the new colonial order during its ascendancy in the early seventeenth century. Employing an interdisciplinary approach that combines Buddhist Studies, History, Literary Criticism and Postcolonial Studies, this book yields important insights into how the colonial experience contributed to the transformation of Buddhist culture in early modernity.
