Abstract The purpose of this study was to determine the effect of a 12-week, 3-day-per-week, 100-min-per-session, low-impact aerobically demanding dance program on the body composition of sedentary, obese, middle-aged women. The program was designed to be fun and enjoyable, and to include a variety of dance styles. The program was evaluated using a pretest and posttest design. The results of the study showed that the program had a significant effect on the body composition of the women. The women who participated in the program showed a significant decrease in body fat percentage and an increase in lean body mass. The program was found to be an effective means of improving body composition in sedentary, obese, middle-aged women.
