Unlock Code Phone Attempt:

Unlocking a Balance in U.S. Mobile Phone Locking Policies Crystal Yi, 2014 On June 29 2007 Apple finally released its long awaited iPhone However consumers soon discovered that not only was the iPhone incompatible with the Verizon and Sprint networks the device could only be accessed through the AT T mobile network for five years Even after other carriers negotiated their own exclusive agreements with Apple in subsequent years their devices were still locked to their own mobile network and could not be used on any other mobile network Today although some mobile phones are available from the carrier unlocked most mobile devices in the U S are still locked Of course there are ways to unlock a mobile device both through the mobile carrier or alternative unlocking services In fact mobile phone unlocking enjoyed a statutory exemption from the anti circumvention provisions of the Digital Millennium Copyright Act DMCA for six years from 2006 to 2012 However the statutory exemption was not renewed and as of January 26 2013 it is illegal to unlock mobile phones without the carrier s authorization Mobile customers were understandably outraged at this policy change and reports of increased illegitimate mobile phone unlocking spread At the same time phone carriers continued to authorize mobile phone unlocking for its customers but began advertising more stringent policies and requirements for it Meanwhile various bills such as the Unlocking Technology Act of 2013 have been proposed to Congress in an attempt to somehow undo the unlocking policy changes of the DMCA Indeed opponents of the Librarian of Congress s decision to deny the renewal of the mobile unlocking exemption touted inter alia consumer choice and copyright arguments However a default rule that allows mobile carriers to control access to the devices they sell may affect other issues that are not readily evident to customers In fact customers generally take for granted subsidized mobile device prices and other bundling or service related benefits that carriers can provide because of the assurance of customer commitment to their network by means of mobile phone locking In addition customers may overlook the innate technological incompatibilities of mobile devices that prevent them from working on other carrier networks which the ability to unlock a mobile device would not overcome In this article I argue that although the DMCA anti circumvention provision creates a default rule that places initial control of access in mobile devices into the hands of the carriers it does not categorically ban mobile phone unlocking Rather it preserves the freedom of parties to contract by reserving the ability of mobile carriers and mobile customers to bargain for mutually beneficial terms Arguably this balance can be met with a default rule that legalizes mobile phone unlocking as the Unlocking Technology Act of 2013 proposes Nevertheless I argue that proposed legislation such as the Unlocking Technology Act of 2013 will inevitably prove ineffective Not only does the bill s intent to infringe requirement make the enforceability of its terms difficult it ironically quells the incentive of carriers to provide its customers with flexibility and additional benefits in an attempt to bolster consumer choice If mobile carriers were to lose the assurance of customer commitment to their network customers would likely lose certain benefits that they had previously received such as flexible payment plans prepaid network services and mobile device subsidies Part I of this article provides a general background of mobile phone locking and the laws regulating it In Part II I discuss the effect of recent and proposed changes in mobile phone locking policies on interactions between mobile phone carriers and their customers focusing on the role of subsidies and device service bundling in the customer carrier relationship Furthermore as a means of comparison I examine the consequences of foreign policies on mobile phone locking on those mobile phone markets Finally I argue that if enacted proposed legislation may eliminate the incentive for mobile carriers to provide mobile customers certain benefits which mobile customers often take for granted
