Each chapter is organized by the book editor along a chronological progression and begins with a human written introduction. Each chapter chronicles a stage in ELT's growth, using publication dates as reference points and provides summaries of selected publications, offering readers the freedom to explore the various aspects of ELT. This reader friendly volume accommodates diverse readers, including students, educators, researchers, policymakers, and anyone intrigued by the intricate tapestry of English Language Teaching. It's a comprehensive journey through the evolution of ELT, reflecting its synchronous and diachronic dimensions, all within a single accessible volume. Evolution, Creationism, and the Battle to Control America's Classrooms Michael Berkman, Eric Plutzer, 2010-09-20 Who should decide what children are taught in school? This question lies at the heart of the evolution-creation wars that have become a regular feature of the US political landscape. Ever since the 1925 Scopes monkey trial, many have argued that the people should decide by majority rule, and through political institutions, others variously point to the federal courts, educational experts, or scientists as the ideal arbiter. Berkman and Plutzer illuminate who really controls the nation's classrooms. Based on their innovative survey of 926 high school biology teachers, they show that the real power lies with individual educators who make critical decisions in their own classrooms. Broad teacher discretion sometimes leads to excellent instruction in evolution. But the authors also find evidence of strong creationist tendencies in America's public high schools. More generally, they find evidence of a systematic undermining of science and the scientific method in many classrooms.

Hamers, Michel Blanc, 1989-02-16 The study of bilingualism the subject of this important textbook is no longer exclusively an academic preoccupation but is a practical necessity in today's multilingual world. Over the past decades, researchers from a wide range of disciplines—linguistics, psychology, neurology, and sociology—have been fragmented and often inaccessible to students. Bilinguality and Bilingualism, a thoroughly revised and updated version of the authors' textbook published in French, provides a comprehensive critical review of current research focusing on the need for genuinely explanatory accounts and the development of satisfactory theoretical models. The book explores the way in which bilingualism develops in childhood or later on its social, neurological, and psychological foundations and on the social and cultural consequences of bilingualism. It also explores the wider issues of languages in contact, both psycholinguistic research to language teaching, translation and interpreting, and also language planning and policy making. The multidisciplinary material is deftly and logically organised to provide a refreshingly clear synthesis which will be invaluable to students and also to specialists who want an up-to-date account of research in different disciplines. It will also be an important reference work for language teachers and for professionals involved in language planning and multilingual education.
