

What is a volcano ?

Volcanoes are openings in the surface of the Earth from which gas and hot molten, or liquid, rock escape and cover the surrounding land. Some volcanoes are deep cracks inside the Earth crust. Others look like cone shaped mountains made out of lava, ash and rock with a hole in the top. The hole is called the vent. The temperature near the Earth's core is so high that the rocks are in a molten form. While the molten rock is inside the Earth it is known as magma. When a volcano erupts the magma forces its way up the vent and escapes on to the Earth's surface, it is called lava. As lava flows, it cools and hardens. The hardened lava, as well as ash and cinders from the volcano pile up around the vent to create the cone.

A cross section through a volcano. The more often a volcano erupts the wider the central vent becomes until eventually it forms a crater.

When a volcano erupts, it usually hurls out clouds of ash and gas, rocks and lava. These large lumps are called volcanic bombs
