- Redo: The process of redoing a change that has been undone.

Branches are now First Class Objects

Branches are now first-class objects in TFS. This means that branches can be managed directly through the TFS interface, just like files and folders. This provides a more intuitive and powerful way to manage your code.

- Branches can be created, deleted, and renamed.
- Branches can be moved between servers.
- Branches can be merged and rebased.
- Branches can be used to manage different versions of the code.

Reparenting Branches

Reparenting branches allows you to move a branch from one parent to another. This is useful for reorganizing your code structure or for moving a branch to a different server.

To reparent a branch, you need to use the "Reparent" option in the context menu. This will move the branch to the new parent and update all references to it.

Branch Visualization

Branch visualization provides a clear and concise way to see the relationships between different branches. It shows the hierarchy of the branches and how they are connected.

Use the "Branching and Merging" context menu to view the branching structure for a specific branch.
