The Art of Inventing Edwin J. Prindle, 2014-06-06 There are many kinds of invention The poet the artist the playwright the novelist all exercise or may exercise invention in the production of their works The merchant may exercise invention in the devising of a new method of selling goods The department store was an invention of this class The subject of my paper is however the art of making technical inventions and particularly patentable inventions And first of its commercial importance for the engineer is concerned with things having a commercial value By the art of inventing wealth is created absolutely out of ideas alone It usually takes capital to develop an invention and make it productive but not always A notable recent example is Professor Pupin s loaded telephone line He received a very large sum of money and his expenditures as I understand were comparatively trivial

The Art of Inventing Edwin Jay Prindle,1906 The Art on Inventing.. Edwin Jay Prindle,1906 The Art and Science of Inventing Gilbert Kivenson,2012-12-06 The Independent Inventor Most persons have at some time in their lives invented somethin perhaps a gadget for making some task easier or a method for increas ing the economy of an everyday operation Aside from a certain degree of personal satisfaction the great majority of these inven tions have never yielded their creators any amount of real return In many instances the fault has been with the inventor himself who made little or no effort beyond writing down the bright idea In a significant number of cases however the problem has arisen from a general lack of knowledge of what to do about a promising idea The individual who works full time in a non technical job usually has no guidance for proceeding in a logical professional way towards effec tive development and utilization of his invention Several other factors are responsible for the considerable waste we see in the handling of inventions Perhaps the most significant of these factors is an incomplete awareness of prior art A stenographer dreams up a device to facilitate the distribution of incoming mail She feels that the idea is so simple that others must have patented it long ago and so she goes no further with the concept At the other extreme is the garage mechanic who invents a new type of wrench The Art of Inventing R.
