

Wh-questions are a type of question that we use to gather information or seek clarification about something. When we say we gather information, it means we want to know more about something, like finding out facts or details. Seeking clarification means that we want to understand something better or get more specific information about it. Wh-questions help us do both of these things. They are called wh-questions because they usually start with words that begin with the letters "wh," such as "who," "what," "where," "when," "why," and "how."

WHO is a person 	WHAT is a thing or an action 	WHEN is a time
WHERE is a place 	WHY is the reason something happened 	HOW is a # or the way something is done 3 OR

Narrative in English Conversation Christoph Rühlemann, 2014-01-09

Storytelling is a fundamental mode of everyday interaction. This book is based upon the Narrative Corpus NC, a specialized corpus of naturally occurring narratives, and provides new paths for its study. Christoph Rühlemann uses the NC's narrative specific annotation and XPath and XQuery query languages that allow the retrieval of complex data structures to facilitate large scale quantitative investigations into how narrators and recipients collaborate in storytelling. Empirical analyses are validated using R, a programming language and environment for statistical computing and graphics. Using this unique data and methodological base, Rühlemann reveals new insights, including the discovery of turntaking patterns specific to narrative, the first investigation of textual colligation in spoken data, the unearthing of how speech reports as discourse units form striking patterns at utterance level, and the identification of the story climax as the sequential context in which recipient dialogue is preferentially positioned.
