

PART II: SOLUTIONS TO PROBLEMS AND CASES

CHAPTER I INTRODUCTION

P 1-1:                   Solution to MBA Students (10 minutes)
[Using accounting information for decision making and control]

Together the two observations highlight the extremes in the trade-offs of using accounting information for decision and control. In the first case, there is more analysis of opportunity costs that are hard to capture with typical accounting information. In the second case, there is less intended interest in opportunity cost and greater emphasis on control.

P 1-2:                   Solution to One Cost System Isn't Enough (15 minutes)
[Economic Darwinism]

The first part of the quote describes the tension (and conflict) that arises when a single accounting system is used for multiple purposes. This part of the statement is an accurate description of practice. However, the quote has a couple of problems, including:

- While the quote describes the costs of using a single system ("a single system ... can't perform important managerial functions adequately"), the quote does not describe the benefits derived from using a single system (lower bookkeeping costs, a single audit, less confusion).

- Because the quote ignores the benefits of a single system, it ignores the concept of economic Darwinism. It does not address the question of how surviving (successful) companies can compete if a single system "can't perform important managerial functions adequately."

- Also, the quote assumes that managers are bound to their internal accounting systems, that no other alternative information sources are available. Often managers develop their own ad hoc, "off-line" information systems for decision making. These systems include PC-based spreadsheets, index cards, informal observation, and "walking around."

P 1-3:                   Solution to U.S. and Japanese Tax Laws (15 minutes)
[Influence of conflicting demands on cost systems]

The internal accounting system supports multiple uses, including financial reporting, taxes, contracting (debt and management compensation), internal decision making, and internal control. Because multiple purposes are served, trade-offs must be made among the competing demands. When more emphasis is placed on one purpose (taxes), less consideration can be given to other uses (internal decision making and

Commentaries on European Contract Laws Nils Jansen, Reinhard Zimmermann, 2018-07-12 The book provides rule by rule commentaries on European contract law general contract law consumer contract law the law of sale and related services dealing with its modern manifestations as well as its historical and comparative foundations After the collapse of the European Commission's plans to codify European contract law it is timely to reflect on what has been achieved over the past three to four decades and for an assessment of the current situation In particular the production of a bewildering number of reference texts has contributed to a complex picture of European contract laws rather than a European contract law The present book adopts a broad perspective and an integrative approach All relevant reference texts from the CISG to the Draft Common European Sales Law are critically examined and compared with each other As far as the acquis commun ie the traditional private law as laid down in the national codifications is concerned the Principles of European Contract Law have been chosen as a point of departure The rules contained in that document have however been complemented with some chapters sections and individual provisions drawn from other sources primarily in order to account for the quickly growing acquis communautaire in the field of consumer contract law In addition the book ties the discussion concerning the reference texts back to the pertinent historical and comparative background and it thus investigates whether and to what extent these texts can be taken to be genuinely European in nature ie to constitute a manifestation of a common core of European contract law Where this is not the case the question is asked whether and for what reasons they should be seen as points of departure for the further development of European contract law Social Media: The Good, the Bad, and the Ugly Yogesh
