Aufmann, Vernon C. Barker, Joanne S. Lockwood, 1999 A Course in Formal Languages, Automata and Groups Ian M. Chiswell, 2008-11-14 This book is based on notes for a master's course given at Queen Mary University of London in the 1998-9 session Such courses in London are quite short and the course consisted essentially of the material in the first three chapters together with a two hour lecture on connections with group theory Chapter 5 is a considerably expanded version of this For the course the main sources were the books by Hopcroft and Ullman 20 by Cohen 4 and by Epstein et al 7 Some use was also made of a later book by Hopcroft and Ullman 21 The ulterior motive in the first three chapters is to give a rigorous proof that various notions of recursively enumerable language are equivalent Three such notions are considered These are generated by a type 0 grammar recognised by a Turing machine deterministic or not and defined by means of a Godel numbering having defined recursively enumerable for sets of natural numbers It is hoped that this has been achieved without too many arguments using complicated notation This is a problem with the entire subject and it is important to understand the idea of the proof which is often quite simple Two particular places that are heavy going are the proof at the end of Chapter 1 that a language recognised by a Turing machine is type 0 and the proof in Chapter 2 that a Turing machine computable function is partial recursive Examrace UGC Psychology Series: Preview , Low-Carbon Economy and Sustainable Development: Driving Force, Synergistic Mechanism, and Implementation Path Zhen Liu, Wang Pei, Jing Lan, Jingchao Zhang, 2024-11-25 In recent years with global economic development and population growth environmental issues have become increasingly prominent Climate change and energy crisis have become global problems that restrict human development and so need to be solved urgently As a comprehensive economic development model the low carbon economy can greatly reduce energy and resource consumption mitigate and adapt to climate change promote economic development and thus achieve the goal of sustainable development Therefore exploring efficient paths toward sustainable development through carbon reduction is an urgent and challenging research topic currently This Research Topic aims to conduct scientific research and exchange from the perspectives of clarifying the drivers behind carbon reduction investigating the synergistic mechanism between the low carbon economy and sustainable development and then exploring the pathways to low carbon development Through comprehensive research and comparative analysis of the relationship between low carbon economy and sustainable development we will verify the feasibility of innovations and updates of carbon reduction applications for sustainable development provide scientific strategies in terms of low carbon economy for sustainable development design technical routes and propose corresponding policy recommendations Examrace Psychology Success Series M.
