Cognitive and Affective Factors in Relation to Learning Mikaela Nyroos, Johan Korhonen, Riikka Mononen, 2022-11-10

Both domain general e.g. working memory executive functions and domain specific e.g. number processing phonological processing cognitive factors have been found to predict learning in different age groups Likewise research has shown that various affective factors such as different emotions e.g. anxiety self concept and interest need to be considered when investigating individual differences in learning However few studies have investigated both cognitive and affective factors simultaneously in relation to learning In particular there is a lack of studies investigating the interplay i.e. moderation and mediation between cognitive and affective factors on learning The goal of this Research Topic is to deepen our knowledge on the relations between learning and both cognitive and affective factors in different age groups We aim to provide a broad scope of emerging areas in research on cognitive and affective factors especially related to academic learning e.g. mathematics reading and other school subjects Studies focusing simultaneously looking at the interplay of these constructs as well as longitudinally are of great interest Further we are interested in innovative study designs and recent advances in methodology in this field To promote quality education for all and equity in education cognitive and affective factors related to aspects of learning ranging from pre school to tertiary provision and inclusion of individuals with special educational needs are of interest

International Perspectives on Gender and Mathematics Education Olof Steinhorsdottir, Helen J. Forgasz, Joanne Rossi Becker, Kyeonghwa Lee, 2010-06-01 Why a book on gender issues in mathematics in the 21st century Several factors have influenced the undertaking of this project by the editors First an international volume focusing on gender and mathematics has not appeared since publication of papers emerging from the 1996 International Congress on Mathematical Education Keitel 1998 Surely it was time for an updated look at this critical area of mathematics education Second we have had lively discussion and working groups on gender issues at conferences of the International Group for the Psychology of Mathematics Education PME for the past four years sessions at which stimulating and ground breaking research has been discussed by participants from many different countries Some publication seemed essential to share this new knowledge emerging from a wider variety of countries and from different cultural perspectives Third some western countries such as Australia and the USA have experienced in recent years a focus on the boy problem with an underlying assumption that issues of females and mathematics have been solved and are no longer worthy of interest Thus it seemed timely to look more closely at the issue of gender and mathematics internationally When the idea for this volume first emerged invitations were issued to those regularly attending the working and discussion groups at PME Potential authors were charged to focus on gender issues in mathematics and were given wide scope to hone in on the issues that were central to their own research efforts or were in receipt or in need of close attention in their own national or regional contexts
